FIRST LADIES AT BOND SALE. The First Lady of the Land, Mrs Harry S Truman, is shown as she bought a Victory bond at the White House from Bess Myerson, the first beauty of the land Miss America of 1945. Later in the day, the Senate took time out from legislative duties to applaud Bess when Majority Leader Barkley noted her in the spectators' gallery.

Marion Joins State, Nation in Marking Victory Over Enemies in Two Great Wars

Yesterday Marion joined other cities in Ohio and the nation in celebrating the end of one world war 27 years ago and Victory this year in the second.

As in other cities, Marion's formal observance was marked by a parade yesterday.

Today business places that regularly observe the holiday are closed.

The day was celebrated by Americans in widely separated points of the world, including London, Paris, Africa, Japan and south Asiatic countries.

1,000 Ignore Weather To March Here

Approximately 1,000 people ignored a chill mist to participate in the Marion Armistice Victory yesterday afternoon. The inclement weather was reflected in the size of the crowd of spectators, an estimated 3,000 lining the streets along the line of march.

The marchers included representations from the city administration, labor, civic and fraternal organizations and veterans from three wars. Co. M, Ohio State Guard and local Boy Scout troops marched together as units. Bands were furnished by Harding High school, Caledonia High school and the Eagles lodge.

Groups which sent floats were the 40 et 8 locomotive and box car, Local 1941 Alloy Cast Steel Co., Ladies Auxiliary to Bird-McGinnis Post, the Daughters of America, and the fire department.

George Geran Honored

Preceding the parade Major George T Geran, marshal of the day, was presented service ribbons in recognition of his participation in major engagements of World War I. The presentation was made by D. J MacDonald, county commander of the American Legion. The ribbons were presented to Major Geran following a 'get together' dinner held by a group of veterans, and replace the bar used to designate the engagements. They are in recognition of Major Geran's service in the major engagements of Chateau Thiery, the Marne, Argonne, Champagne and Vosges.

Covers were placed for 15 veterans of both World wars at the dinner held at the Manor House, and arranged for by County Commander MacDonald.

Carrying the celebration into today, J. W. Llewellyn, former commander of Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162 and Jewell L. Ralston, acting chaplain of the post gave a commemorative program over station WMRN this morning at 10.45 a. m.

Ralston in his prayer thanked God for victory in the recent war and prayed "for a peace that shall have no ending."

War Met in Vain

"World War I was not fought in vain as it brought twenty-three years of peace to America," Mr Llewellyn said in his address.

Mr. Llewellyn pointed out that although a second world war followed within a generation, had America not participated in World War I England and France would have been defeated. Germany would then have found America "like a sitting duck ready for the killing."

He contrasted the conditions existing this Armistice Day with those of last year and gave thanks

Victory Bond Demonstration To Be Staged by Harding Band

The emphasis will be on Victory when the Harding High school band stages its demonstration Friday night between halves of the Harding-Springfield football game at the stadium here.

The demonstration will be the band's contribution to the Victory Loan bond campaign now under way in Marion and throughout the United States.

"Dad" and "Mom" also will come in for their share of attention from the band, as the game will mark observance of parents' day.

The 100-piece Harding marching band will move onto the field from the south end with the opening fanfare.

The first formation will be a huge letter S as a salute to the visitors from Springfield. From the S formation the band will go into a letter V in recognition of the Victory bond drive. The musicians will then form into a giant torch, the emblem of the Victory Loan drive. The torch will be outlined with lights carried by the band members. In this formation the band will play, "God of Our Fathers."

As a tribute to the "Dads" and "Moms" present the band will form in the center of the field and spell out the word "Dad," at the same time singing "What's the Matter with Father." The formation will change to "Mom" as the musicians sing, "What's the Matter with Mother."

The Harding school song and the monogram H. H. S. will complete the band demonstration.

The band feature of the band demonstration is being arranged by the special events committee of the Victory loan drive in cooperation with Homer Huffman, director of the band.

WARNS OF TRADE WAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Secretary of Commerce Wallace warned business men today of the threat of "a costly trade war, with the Russian group, the sterling group and the dollar group divided against each other."

Veteran Picks Wrong Car, Loses New Suit

Martin Rice of near Delaware, recently discharged from the Army, purchased a blue pin-striped suit at a Marion store Saturday but he didn't keep it very long, according to a report to police yesterday.

Rice told police that after purchasing the suit he returned to a parking lot at Prospect and Mill streets and put the suit together with his garrison cap and blouse in an automobile which he believed to be the one he had driven to town. When he returned later to the lot, the automobile containing his suit had disappeared and he discovered then he had placed the clothes in the wrong car.

Report Hull Winner of Nobel Peace Prize

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Nov. 12 — Reuters News Agency in a dispatch from Oslo today said Cordell Hull had been awarded the Nobel peace prize.

Reuters said the Norwegian news service reported the award of the prize to Hull, who was succeeded as U. S. secretary of state on Nov. 27, 1944 by Edward R. Stettinius.

As secretary of state he laid the foundations for the San Francisco conference, which drafted the United Nations charter.

BOSTON GREETS GENERAL "IKE"

Eisenhower Back in U. S. To Testify on Merger; Guest at Celebration.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Nov. 12—General of the Army Dwight D Eisenhower landed at the Naval Air Station field at nearby Squantum at 11 35 a m, Eastern Standard Time, today enroute to Washington where he is to testify on proposals for unification of the armed services.

He will be guest for the day at Boston's Armistice day celebration.

Eisenhower, first off the huge C-54 transport plane, stepped into the arms of his wife while a small crowd, mostly Navy personnel, cheered.

Wearing a big smile, the general kissed his wife and then put his arms around her waist and lifted her off the ground. Next he shook hands with Governor Maurice J Tobin of Massachusetts and acting Mayor John E Kerrigan of Boston.

The group posed briefly for photographs and when somebody yelled, "Kiss her Ike," the general laughed and said,

"You take your pictures and I'll take care of my business."

He squeezed his wife's hand while camera shutters clicked.

Guest of the City

Gen Eisenhower stepped into the automobile of Mayor Kerrigan and with a police escort was whisked into Boston where he was the official luncheon guest of the city.

While the announced purpose of the general's return from Frankfurt, Germany, was to testify before congressional committees, authoritative sources in Washington were predicting his trip was a possible prelude to assignment to succeed Gen. George C. Marshall as Army chief of staff, possibly late next month.

The general and his wife were invited to be the guests of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts at a state dinner tonight.

BURGLARS LOOT 3 BUSINESS PLACES

One Entered Twice in Wave of Week-End Break-ins.

Four forced entries were reported over the week-end to city police, with the Farm Bureau on Park boulevard being reported broken into twice within 24 hours.

The first report from the Farm Bureau was at 11 45 p. m. Saturday when Lew Braham, night watchman, discovered a window on the east side of the warehouse had been forced open. The sales room was ransacked and some empty pop bottles and cookies were found outside the window. The second report was Sunday night at 8.33 p. m. According to that report entrance was gained by unlocking a door on the grain chute. Braham reported that when he investigated a noise he saw four men running from the building toward the Chesapeake and Ohio tracks. He told police he fired after them but missed. Nothing was reported taken at that time.

Approximately $39 in change was taken from a cash register at the Tolin Grocery at Commercial and Silver streets when entrance was gained there through a coal chute located on the west side of the building, according to an investigation by police after the report was received at 9.17 a. m. yesterday.

Wilbur Symes, manager of Symes Garage located at 209 North Main street reported a burglary at yesterday noon which had occurred some time since midnight Saturday. Investigation showed a window was raised on the south side of the building after which the person or persons entering made an opening in a plaster board wall leading into the office. Apparently the door had been tried but it failed to open. A small wrecking bar was used in both attempts. A small unlocked safe in the office was standing open and approximately $7 in change was taken from the cash box there. Papers from the safe were strewed on the floor. Police thought the intruders escaped through a rear door.

TELLS OF ATROCITIES

MANILA, Nov. 12—A bayonet-scarred, black-draped Filipino woman sobbed out at the war-crimes trial of Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita today a story of the fatal stabbing and burning of her four children and her mother by blood-crazed Japanese. The prosecution stated that 1,600 Filipinos in her neighborhood were thus "brutally slaughtered and massacred" during a month.

BIG INDUSTRY IN SPOTLIGHT

Labor Leaders Watch U. S. Steel, Auto Field for Break as Conference Recesses.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—With the labor-management conference in Armistice day recess the capital today watched big industry—steel and automotive—for the next move in industrial relations.

Leaders of United States Steel Corp shortly will reply to Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach's second request that they resume wage talks with the CIO United Steelworkers of America.

Benjamin F. Fairless, U. S. Steel president, wired Schwellenbach the invitation to resume negotiations under a special conciliator Wednesday would be taken up after the holiday.

Nevertheless, Fairless stated, any new negotiations on the union's demanded $2 daily wage increase cannot be expected to produce results until OPA acts on price increases "to which the steel industry has long been entitled by reason of past heavy increases in its costs."

In the auto industry, too, it was a case of watchful waiting. The threat of a strike against General Motors, Chrysler and Ford—went on a 24-hour basis.

A six-man strategy committee took full charge of the CIO United Auto Workers' fight for a 30 per cent wage increase. The committee headed by UAW President R J Thomas, was authorized by the union's executive board to act "as it may see fit" in support of the wage board.

UAW Vice President Walter Reuther said this would permit a strike call on immediate notice if developments warranted.

The National Labor Relations board said unions are asking new strike votes at the rate of 45 a day.

The Brookings institution said labor agreements should be made legally enforcable if the government wants business to engage in collective bargaining wholeheartedly.

The institution is a privately endowed organization for social science research.

FIRE HITS CLYDE PLANT

By The Associated Press

CLYDE, O., Nov. 12—The main plant of Sandusky county's largest manufacturing concern—the Clyde Porcelain Steel Co. employing 700 workers—lay in ruins today, destroyed by a $500,000 fire which defied the efforts of firemen from Clyde, Fremont, Bellevue and Tiffin. Cause of the blaze was undetermined. Col. T. E. Stelzer, executive vice president of the company, said the plant would be rebuilt.

Keep Up Hunt for Vet's Body

Professional Diver from Toledo Fails To Find Victim in Gravel Pit Pool.

The body of Paul Eugene James, 23, of 779 Pilmore street, who drowned Saturday morning in the gravel pit west of the Airport had not been found at noon today. The accident occurred while James and his brother Robert, 13, were hunting ducks.

James had shot a duck which fell near the center of the pit, his brother said Saturday. Removing most of his clothing, he swam out after the duck and was returning with it when he was apparently seized by a cramp and went down.

When search with grappling hooks and irons failed to produce results, a professional diver from Toledo was called in. He has been diving for the body since last night without success.

A representative of the sheriff's office said that if the body is not found by early afternoon an attempt will be made to bring it to the surface through the use of dynamite charges.

James was discharged from the army airforces two weeks ago. He saw service in England and France.

Tracks showing where James waded into the water were clearly visible. The exact spot where his brother stood on the other side of the pit was found and by sighting along these two lines searchers were able to begin at approximately the place James went down, 75 to 100 feet from shore.

Boats belonging to the police and fire departments and two volunteer boats have been in use during the daylight hours since noon Saturday. A seal beam light, rigged up by W Don Davis, was tried Saturday night. It proved ineffective below a depth of eight feet and soundings have shown the pit to be between 20 and 30 feet deep.

A crowd of more than 200 has been present since Saturday. They have assisted by keeping a bonfire going at which the workers could warm themselves from time to time.

Several theories accounting for the difficulty in locating the body have been advanced by Fire Chief Owen A Sifritt and Fireman John Ganoe, who assisted in the dragging Saturday and Sunday.

While there is no submerged equipment in the pit, there is a growth of moss on the bottom estimated at from 8 to 10 inches long. This growth frequently fouls the hooks, one of which is broken.

There is the possibility that the body is not lying on the bottom but floating upright several feet from the bottom. If this is true the difficulty in locating it is greatly increased.

Firemen assisting Saturday and Sunday were Chief Sifritt, Ganoe, John Coolpatt, John Alexander, and Ned Ziegler.

LITTLE CHEER IN LABOR NEWS

One Small Strike Ends, but Bigger Ones Threaten; 272,500 Idle.

By The Associated Press

One small break in the nation's cloudy labor horizon appeared over the week-end but 272,500 workers continued idle in labor disputes and the troubles besetting the basic steel and automotive industries remained unresolved.

The break came when 2,500 CIO Electrical Workers in New Jersey returned to work today at three plants of Thomas A Edison, Inc.

But several times as many workers were affected by the CIO Electrical Workers' request that the War Labor board conduct a strike vote among 270,000 employes of three big manufacturers of electrical equipment.

These manufacturers were General Electric, Westinghouse and the General Motors Corporation's electrical division—all makers of scarce consumer goods like radios, refrigerators and washing machines.

Electrical workers' representatives are asking $2 a day pay raise.

President Benjamin F Fairless of the U S Steel Corp promised "prompt and careful consideration" of a government appeal that the company resume collective bargaining conferences with the

JAVA LEADER ASKS HELP FROM RUSSIA

By The Associated Press

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 12 — Foreign Minister Soebardjo pleaded today for Soviet intervention on behalf of his unrecognized Indonesian republic as heavily-supported British Indian infantry renewed the house-to-house assault which drove Indonesian Nationalists from almost half of Soerabja over the week-end.

"It is apparent now that Britain is paving the way for the reimposition of Dutch rule in Indonesia," Soebardjo said in a radio appeal addressed to Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov.

The Indonesian leader promised the Indonesians would assist Allied forces in disarming and evacuating Japanese forces.

The battle for Soerabaja raged with unabated fury after a weekend of fighting in which the British renewed their air attacks upon Indonesian forces. Indonesian-manned Japanese tanks reportedly fired 20 shells into the 5th Indian division ranks.

Both Indonesian and British sources indicated Indonesian casualties were heavy. President Soekarno declared "thousands and thousands" of civilians had been killed in a "vast massacre." An official British report said many of the "enemy" were slain in "fanatical charges against British tanks."

White House Says Joint Statement To Be Made; Britain's Plan Listed.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—President Truman studied today a proposal by Prime Minister Attlee for pooling atomic bomb and other basic scientific knowledge among members of the United Nations security council.

The British proposal, disclosed by British officials was conditioned upon a broad, long range statement of international political objectives by Soviet Russia. These, it was reported, would cover the Soviet Union's territorial and diplomatic aspirations for many years to come.

If the general sharing plan proved unacceptable to other nations British officials said Attlee then would have the Anglo-American nations retain the knowledge they have and may develop on atomic problems, but promise voluntarily to use the bomb only in accord with decisions of the security council.

Endorsement Agency

(The security council is the 11-member enforcement agency of the United Nations on which the Big Five would be permanent members and the remainder elected by the assembly of all United Nations.)

The text of the Attlee plan was not made public and the White House declined comment. The British said it was presented Mr. Truman during his conference with Attlee and Prime Minister MacKenzie King of Canada.

The prime minister may leave next week-end and there is speculation he will visit Canada on the way home.

PICK UP

Presidential Secretary William Hassett told reporters President Truman would have nothing to say on the progress of his current discussions with Attlee and Premier W. L. MacKenzie King of Canada until they are ended.

Then, he said, there will be "a joint statement by the three." Attlee saw the President after breakfast this morning.

Prepares for Address

Hassett said Mr. Truman thought the atomic energy talks would be resumed this afternoon. But a British embassy official later told reporters Attlee would not return to the White House today.

Instead, this official said, Attlee will devote most of the afternoon to preparation of an address he will deliver tomorrow to a joint session of congress.

When Attlee left the White House, Hassett said Mr Truman told him he would be available whenever the prime minister was ready to resume their conversations.

An official in a position to know—but who declined to be identified—told reporters the British prime minister had suggested to President Truman and Premier

Atom Issue Splits Congress Leaders

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—Congress took a deep breath today before wading into a torrent of angry words tomorrow about atomic energy, peacetime military training, Pearl Harbor and jobs for all.

In keeping with the Armistice day holiday, the senate passed up a session today. The house arranged to meet briefly and then recess until Tuesday. Here's the way the fighting shapes up:

Midwest Hunts For 6 Sailor Fugitives

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Nov. 12—Two of eight sailors who reportedly escaped the Camp Peary, Va., guard house Friday were in police custody here today as search for the remaining six spread through the midwest.

City police spotted the pair in a stolen automobile yesterday.

Held on suspicion, they registered as Charles Wright, 18, of Nashville, Tenn., and Silas Burgers, 21, of Baxter, Tenn.

Police Sgt. George W. Ebbers quoted the men as saying they escaped Camp Peary with six other sailor prisoners Friday after overpowering two Marine guards.

The flight of the band of escapees, marked by at least four automobile thefts and two robberies, led through Virginia and Kentucky into Ohio.

HAL M'INTYRE BAND IN UNION CO. FIGHT

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 12—Plain City was the scene of a wild affair early last Thursday, according to the Tri-County News of that town. Sheriff Homer Roosa of Marysville was called, but the sheriff did not inform the public of the affair through the local newspapers.

As the result of the disturbances, Leo McKirgan, owner of the West End Station restaurant in Plain City may file charges against Hal McIntyre and members of his band, it is said.

The Union county sheriff was called to Plain City about 5 a. m. Thursday to assist local police in restoring order and peace at the restaurant where a near riot occurred when 25 men, all members of the band had created a disturbance which drew gunfire from the proprietor.

The celebrated radio and recording orchestra was enroute to Akron in a chartered bus where they were to play an engagement on Friday night. They stopped into the restaurant to eat and when the waitress and cook were unable to give them as prompt service as they desired the men, who were said to be drinking, took over the place and proceeded to chase the waitress, Alka Van Hoose and the cook off the job, authorities said.

David W. Baughman of Macon, Ga., was appointed to the Cleveland position, and Harold A. Diggs of Boston to Akron.

New Television Units Now Under Construction

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—First manufactured radio equipment, including camera, for use in color television and under order by CBS, will handle both color and black and white pictures.

However, the manufacturer (Westinghouse), in announcing production is to start shortly, said that "in their original form the new units will pick up pictures from films or slides." As to apparatus for live talent pickups, it was added that "work is going ahead at CBS on a further development."

Technically, the units are designed to produce higher definition black and white images of 1029 lines, compared to the present 525, and 30 frames per second. For color, each primary shade, red, green and blue, will be made up of 525 lines, giving a total of 1575 for the overall picture. The frame speed will be 20 instead of 30.

To provide proper color sequence a motor-driven color disk rotated at high speed is used both in the camera and at the receiver. The units would handle both picture and sound on the same carrier wave through a series of alternating high speed pulses.

All networks are to broadcast the addresses of Prime Minister Clement Attlee before a joint session of congress on Tuesday from 12:30 p. m. to conclusion.

...he end of their fearful ...representatives of the ... Powers visited the ... camp The Geneva ...n provides that belliger...rents shall designate ...l government to act as their representative in dealing with the enemy nation in matters concerning prisoners of war. Switzerland was the Protective Power for the U. S and British prisoners. Sweden represented the Dutch. A Swiss and a Swedish delegate made the trip to the camp.

The Japs, forewarned, of course, appointed certain spokesmen to speak for our men at this meeting, which naturally made it farcical, because the true purpose of such meetings is for the Protective Power to determine if the captor nation is living up to the provisions of the Convention. The American spokesmen were told in advance exactly what they must say to the Swiss and Swede. They were forbidden to discuss anything of consequence concerning the camp. Before the Protective Powers arrived the Japs rounded up all the starvlings in the area, ordered them to go inside the barracks, wash and put on their best remaining clothes.

See Evidence of Privations

The American officers selected to speak with the Swiss had so little to say, except to look the man in the eye and invite his attention to their haggard bodies, that the meeting broke up much sooner than the Japs had anticipated. In leaving the camp, therefore, the Swiss and Swedish delegates ran into a group of our dirty, dishevelled, starved officers returning from their forced work in the fields. The Japs did their best to run the men to cover before the representatives of the Protective Powers could see them, but they failed. Our officers just stood there in their sweaty breechcloths and let themselves be seen. The Swiss delegate attempted to say something to an American major general, but before the American could answer more than a word or two he was brushed aside and sent indoors.

Nothing good ever came of this tragic meeting. If the Swiss did make a report, it was ignored.

Officers Sent To Japan

The cream of our courageous officers at Shirakawa ended on Oct. 1, 1944. At 3 o'clock that afternoon they, along with certain British and Dutch officers, were peremptorily ordered to pack their belongings and were told they would be sent to Japan the next day.

The small group of senior officers and orderlies, to which I was attached, joined the courageous men of Shirakawa early on October, 1944, in Japan. And together we proceeded toward Manchuria.

We had no way of knowing it, but this was to be the last milepost of our long trail. All we knew when told that we would be sent far north was the sinking feeling a man gets when he learns that his prison sentence has been prolonged. Had we been kept in the Philippines we even now would have been free men. For Douglas, true to his promise to me on Corregidor two days before he left for Australia, had come back, come back with a great fleet to support him and manpower beyond the dreams of defeated commanders such as ourselves.

However, we were far from the Philippines by that time.

Destroys Some Possessions

Before I was permitted to leave Mukden for the new prison in the north, my personal belongings underwent their most complete search by the Japs. I previously saw such inspection being made of the personal letters and documents of other men, so I burned certain possessions of mine which I did not care for the Japs to see or seize.

When my turn came on my final day at Mukden the Japs took from me my lengthy written report of the Bataan operations and the supporting reports of my division commanders, together with several valuable maps which had somehow escaped earlier probings of my effects.

I saved my little black diary and a file of personal and official papers by means of a bit of sleight-of-hand. My orderly, Sgt. Hubert Carroll had just had his own personal baggage thoroughly checked. Before the inspectors could get to me however I was able to slip the diary and file to him. He hid it in his already checked baggage, and in this way I was able to keep it—and it has been of great assistance to me in the preparation of this brief history.

An Arduous Trip

We entrucked at Mukden at 10 p. m. on Oct. 5, 1944, were taken to Taiheku, put on a train and got under way at 11 p. m. We were in this miserable train all night and until noon the next day, by which time my sacroiliac trouble was aggravated to a point where I more than needed the old light walking stick which Gen. MacArthur had given me.

Our destination proved to be the town of Heito, near the southern tip of Formosa. Here we were transferred to a narrow-gauge railway used for hauling sugar cane, for we were in the midst of the principal sugar-raising district of the Japanese Empire. The train took us eight or ten miles to a thoroughly vile prisoner-of-war camp. As we entered the compound I saw a large group of prisoners, mostly British but with a number of Americans, returning from work in the fields. They were little more than skin and bone, some of their depleted bodies bronzed and some of them horribly burned by the sun. They were the very epitome of human bondage, and standing there watching them drag themselves to their cup of rice moved me to helpless tears.

Housed In Shack

Our group was then loudly ordered to line up before the most savage-looking Jap lieutenant I ever saw. We counted off, and then were taken to a long, low-roofed bamboo shack, with sleeping benches on the dirt floors.

We were given no midday meal. A surly Jap soldier led one of us to the opening of the shack to show us our sanitary arrangements. Outside was a bucket of dirty water for washing (we were grimy from the long and dirty train rides) and a reeking wooden tub partly filled with human excrement and urine.

I saw the enslaved men limp back at dusk that evening and lie in an irrigation ditch in complete weariness, and my mind was filled with them that night as I tried to find sleep on the hard bench that was my bed.

Filth Beyond Description

We had lost most of the niceties of civilized living by this stage of our captivity, but few of us were able to stomach the sanitary arrangements the Japs provided at this camp. One of those who rebelled against using the filthy tub outside the hut was a British brigadier.

Just before dark that evening we heard a Jap shouting, "You must use the tub." The brigadier had been caught attempting to use a corner of the prison reservation to answer a call of nature, and had been dragged over to the tub. The sentry had called up reinforcements and it was this Jap we heard shouting.

"But I can't do it. I simply can't," the Englishman resisted.

We could sympathize with him after seeing the condition of the sides of that awful bin.

The argument rose to a high pitch, then the Jap interpreter viciously slapped the brigadier. But again he refused. He was slapped again, and then again, but he held out with true British fervor.

"It just isn't, isn't dignified," he said and that was that.

A Message and Pledge

Later that night I felt a tap on my ankle and, investigating, saw a bony white hand reaching up from under the foot of my bench. It was wagging a bit of paper. I reached down and took the paper. It was a note from an American officer quartered in the other end of the same shack, but separated from me by a partition. He told me there were 34 American officers and men in this camp, and that they had pledged themselves to endure any treatment the Japs gave them, they were determined to live.

Lt. Gen. A. E. Percival received a similar note from a British officer in the same heart-breakingly furtive manner as I had received mine.

Daylight was a blessing for all of us. We got up, finished dressing, and were fed a little rice and transparent soup. We were then told to shoulder our belongings again, were formed and marched to the entrance of the camp, where the despotic-looking Jap lieutenant roughly searched us. We were then given one of those impossibly puerile orders which the Japs dote upon, such as our orders at Karenko to refrain from "thinking evil thoughts of Nippon." Here at Heito the Jap lieutenant now commanded that we remove all our pens and pencils from our pockets and place them in our luggage.

Off on Another Trip

They marched us to the narrow-gauge railway again and we were taken back to Heito, put in trucks and moved to its airport. Six Jap transport planes, copies of our C-47, were lined up waiting for us. My back was so bad by this time that Sgt. Carroll had to help me with my luggage and assist me in getting into the plane, but I was relieved to get away from Heito.

• • •

Installment No. 37

In this installment Gen. Wainwright tells of his trip to Manchuria destined to be the last stop on his long siege of prison camps.

OUR JAP TRANSPORT PLANES took off at 8 a. m. from that monstrous place named Heito, on Formosa, on Oct. 7, 1944, headed north and flew through murky weather until shortly after 2 o'clock, when the pilot let us down on a field near the southern end of Kyushu, southernmost of the four main Japanese islands. A truck took us to what must have been a summer hotel and, after parking our shoes outside, we walked in and, to our great surprise, were given a good lunch. I ate it to the plate-scraping point. But the fresh memory of the men left behind at Heito—including some of my officers who were scheduled to follow by boat—cut into my enjoyment of the first good meal I had had since the war started.

Only five planes arrived at Kyushu in time for lunch. The sixth, containing Major Gen. George F. Moore, was long overdue. We waited for it all afternoon, and my worry over him and the officers with him mounted. Our scheduled train time of 4:30 p. m. arrived and passed. But just at dusk the plane bearing Moore appeared over the field and made its landing. It had been enroute about 12 hours.

Jap with American Slang

We were given supper at the same hotel and when it was done we were taken to a train. It was another all-night ride, and on the morning of Oct. 8, 1944, we stopped at a large Kyushu city named Beppu. We were met there by a talkative Jap soldier-interpreter we had seen at Tamazato. He was born in San Francisco and spoke more American slang per sentence than I had ever heard before or since. He took charge of us, put us in buses and took us to a hotel where we were delighted to find all the American general officers we had last seen at Tamazato on June 5, 1943. They showed the stark effects of their remarkable stand against the Jap cruelties at Shirakawa, and it was then that I heard their stirring story from Brig. Gen. Lewis Beebe.

Packed Aboard Ship

We stayed at the flimsy hotel through Oct. 8 and 9, during which time I was permitted to use the hot bath in the cellar for my ailing back. On the morning of the 9th we moved on by train and rode all day to a seaport city whose name I never learned. We were hurried through the streets to a ship and packed in like fish. The ship lay there that night while we tried to find room to sleep, and left the next morning.

I was almost certain by now that we would be taken to one of the other main Jap islands, perhaps Honshu, but I soon saw from the position of the sun that we were sailing in a northwesterly direction. We knew then we were going to Korea and perhaps farther north, and the matter of our tropical clothing began to concern us. We had suffered enough from the cold the previous two winters in relatively mild Formosa.

About noon of that day's voyage we were startled to hear a ship machine-gun burst into action and thought immediately that we had been attacked by an American plane (as, I later learned, did the Americans who followed us from Heito by boat). But when we rushed to the portholes we saw that the gun was firing only at a floating mine.

Reach Korean Port

We were fed cold rice, a few vegetables and strips of some strange fish shortly after noon, and at 5:30 we approached a harbor when Gen. Defermery, a Dutch officer who had traveled in this region, identified as Fusan, Korea. They herded us off the ship and to a hotel, where we were rather decently fed, and then moved us on to an office building from whose rooms all furniture and floor covering had been removed. Each room held a bundle of blankets in a corner. We rolled up in them and slept.

The Japs routed us early in the morning and took us back to the hotel for some fish and warming tea, then marched us to a railroad. They would not tell us where we were being taken.

After riding all that day and through the next two days and nights on back-breaking wooden seats, we arrived at a bleak western Manchurian village named Sheng Tai Tun, just over a low mountain range from the Gobi Desert. It was freezing. Our malnutrition and the long stay in the tropics had thinned our blood to the consistency of water. None of us had overcoats or even moderately warm clothing. To a man, we began to shake and our teeth clattered like castanets.

At Cold and Barren Camp

The barren new camp, half a mile from the railroad, had once been occupied by Russian troops guarding the Manchurian railway under the terms of an old treaty. We lined up outside the barracks, still shaking with the cold, and the camp commander made a long and characteristically senseless speech. Then we had to form a queue and sign statements that we would obey the rules of the camp and would not attempt to escape. After what seemed like an age we were permitted to go inside the barracks and were assigned to our rooms. There were 90 of us, mostly senior officers.

Major Gen. Edward P. King and I were put in a room together and, like the others, our immediate aim in life was to get some warmth into our bones. We found an old Russian stove, a gigantic affair with a small, low opening for coal, and built a fire, which had to be stoked constantly while we were there, for the coal was very bad.

Welcome Change In Food

The arrival of our first meal made us realize, to our joy, that we had at last moved out of the rice-eating and watery soup world. The meal contained bread, real white bread, and a thick vegetable cake mixed with maize or millet.

It was a hard life at Sheng Tai Tun. We had no work to do but there were no books, and walking outside in the piercing gales was too rigorous. We could not get warm clothing and could not move far from our stoves. The kitchen, bathhouse and latrine were from 30 to 50 yards away from the barracks and all of us were still troubled with our kidney ailments. There was no hot water or soap for washing ourselves or our dishes. Our hands cramped when we put them in the frigid water. But we made the best of things, even had a little "club life" at nights. We would save part of our bread, slice it very thin, toast it brown over our Russian stove—"a la Melba toast"—and then assemble in my room and munch on it and talk.

Reunion and Disappointment

Our colonels, orderlies and certain others arrived on Nov. 14, 1944, with our heavier luggage. Sympathetically, we watched them shake and shiver outside the barracks while the camp commander made his speech and they signed their good conduct papers. But at last we were united, a union which was colored by my disappointment in learning that my aides, Col. Johnny Pugh and Major Tom Dooley, had been left behind on Formosa for want of enough rank.

The new men brought books with them, too, which were great gifts.

One bleak days dragged on. The climate in that part of the world is extremely dry and the winds are of tremendous force. Our barracks was hazy with dust day and night. To combat it we began sprinkling the floors twice a day, and this proved disastrous to Gen. King.

Gen. King Injured

One night a Jap guard came into our room to check up on us last after we had wet down the floor. As we jumped up and started for our appointed places at the foot of our sleeping bench, Gen. King slipped and fell heavily on his right hip, hurting him so badly that it was with the greatest difficulty that he was able to get back to his feet. I at once called two American doctors in the barracks. They decided after a preliminary examination that King had either fractured his hip or seriously torn its ligaments. They made him as comfortable as they could for the night.

The next day an American medical officer and an Australian and a Dutch doctor, gave him a more thorough examination. All wishing aloud that they had an X-ray. They decided that he had fractured either the head of the femur or possibly that part of the pelvis in which the femur articulates. They managed to beg a ring split from the Jap hospital and fitted him up as best as they could, but the best was far from comfortable on that short, hard bed.

March In Zero Weather

On Dec. 1, 1944, the 16 seniors of the group, along with their 16 orderlies, were ordered to pack up again. Once more we had to say farewell to the younger officers whom let we have visited. We marched through biting zero weather to the train and packed into it in a state of numbness. Poor King had to be carried to the train on a litter.

But there in our battered car to our eternal joy were 288 American Red Cross packages—only the second batch we had received since our capture began 31 months before. We placed Gen. King's litter over the backs of two of the hard seats and dreamed of the time when the Japs would condescend to let us open our packages.

(TOMORROW: Gen. Wainwright's men begin to get even with the Japs—through sabotage.)

Old Oaken Bucket Big Item in O.S.U. Hopes for Pennant

Purdue-Indiana Traditional Game May Spell Title Share, if Bucks Win Next Two Tilts.

By HAROLD HARRISON
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 12.—The Old Oaken Bucket, the iron-bound bucket is an important item to Ohio State university's football fortunes today.

Heading for their last two games of the season against Illinois and Michigan, the Bucks need, of course, to whip those two old rivals even to have a chance for a second straight Western conference championship. Even a pair of triumps won't help the Ohioans unless Purdue's boilermakers whip Indiana in their annual battle for the Old Oaken bucket on Nov. 24.

With another capacity crowd of 74,000 expected to see the tilt with Illinois here Saturday, the Bucks were thankful today their opponent Saturday was weak Pittsburgh.

Panthers Tough

Maybe it was the weather—there was mud, rain and snow all afternoon—but it took a last-period, two-touchdown spree to give Ohio a 14 to 0 decision over the Panthers who have won only two games all season.

The Pitt forward wall threw back every Buck challenge until the last period was half over. Then an 80-yard march was climaxed by an 18-yard touchdown gallop by Alex Verdova. A few minutes later Ollie Cline made the victory safe with a 63-yard touchdown run.

Ohio gained all of its 359 yards on running plays. They tried three passes but completed none. Pitt took to the air six times, connecting once for 15 yards.

Pitt's defensive heroics provided the only bright spot for the Panther fans. Three times in the first half, the Bucks battered their way almost to the goal line only to be turned back

Were Pitt Down

The Ohio power took its toll in the last period, although the Panthers had enough fight left to get as far as the Buck 12-yard line.

The workhorse of the day again was Cline. The Fredericktown sophomore lugged the ball 32 times to pick up 220 yards. It was the second straight game in which he had carried the ball more than 30 times. His average Saturday was 7.1 yards a try.

Hoosiers Near First Big Ten Title

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 12—Only their traditionally-bitter finale with Purdue on Nov. 24 stands between Alvin Nugent (Bo) McMillin's "Pore Lil" Indiana Hoosiers and their first football championship in Western conference history.

Here's the conference picture:

Indiana — With four victories and a tie, the Hoosiers tackle Pittsburgh Saturday in a non-conference scrap at Pittsburgh.

Ohio State — The Buckeyes, scared by Pittsburgh, 14-0, Saturday, have a 4-1 league record and can still finish with the best percentage if they bump off Illinois and Michigan the next two Saturdays and Indiana loses to Purdue.

Purdue—The Boilermakers with a 3-1 record must get by both Michigan and Indiana to stake a title claim and even then would be an also ran if Ohio State wins its last two.

Michigan—If Fritzler's eleven bowls over both Purdue and Ohio State, Indiana can walk off with the title by trimming Purdue

Wolverine stock tumbled somewhat last Saturday when Navy belted Michigan, 33-7, but the Boilermakers had little to crow about in their 21-7 victory over little Miami (Ohio).

Ohio State will be favored over Illinois at Columbus, although the Illini came to life against Iowa Saturday for a 48-7 victory. The only other conference tilt sends Minnesota to Iowa.

Minnesota was left in shambles Saturday when Indiana handed the Gophers the worst football trouncing they've ever received, 49-0.

Northwestern plays host to Notre Dame in a non-league game at Evanston. The Wildcats spurted to a 28-14 win over Wisconsin Saturday

May 23 Black Letter Day for Phoolish Phils

By JIMMY JORDAN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO—Fuel for the Hot Stove league:

There were a lot of embarrassing incidents in the major leagues the past season, but it's doubtful anybody but the Daffiness Boys of Flatbush—at their daffiest, of course—could have crowded so many into less than one inning as did Philadelphia's Phillies.

That was last May 23, when they were playing the Chicago Cubs at Wrigley Field.

It started with two out in the fifth, just after Peanuts Lowrey had singled home Mickey Livingston to put the Cubs ahead, 4-3. Lowrey got the signal to steal. The veteran Gus Mancuso was catching. His throw to nip Lowrey at second hit pitcher Charley Schanz on the side of the head, and bounded into right field!

Jimmie Foxx led off the Philly half of the sixth with a single Vince DiMaggio singled to left, and Lowrey relayed the ball in to Billy Schuster at short Johnny Antonelli stepped to the plate. Foxx took a lead and was quickly tagged out by Schuster on the hidden ball play.

The veteran Foxx stalked back to the dugout, and hardly had a chance to sit down, offer an explanation, or anything else, when the next one, also engineered by Schuster, came up

Antonelli hit a tall fly to Bill Nicholson in right field. DiMaggio, following usual procedure in such cases, trotted halfway down to second. But instead of watching Nicholson, he took a look at Schuster, over in his shortstop position.

Schuster suddenly charged toward second and stooped as if catching a throw in from Nicholson DiMaggio slid into the bag. Nicholson caught Antonelli's fly, doubled DiMaggio and the inning was over.

And Schuster still is laughing.

MINORS PLAN BEEFS FOR ANNUAL SESSION

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Threats from the minor leagues that they would refuse to recognize Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler unless the major loops made concessions on draft prices and territorial protection appear to have dissolved today as baseball leaders turn their attention toward the National association convention in Columbus, Dec. 5, 6 and 7.

This meeting was scheduled to serve as a sounding board for minor league discontent with the rules.

Among 51 proposed amendments to the major-minor code to be considered at Columbus, as forwarded from the office of the association president, is a proposal that the major-minor agreement be extended to Jan. 12, 1947 "to permit the revision committee to agree on changes and submit its proposals, presumably at the 1946 meetings."

However, it is understood most of the minors favor pigeon-holing the report for a year.

O. S. U. NEAR RECORD

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 12—Ohio State university's footballers are certain to set two new attendance records this year.

With a sellout crowd of 74,000 assured for Saturday's homecoming tilt with Illinois, the Bucks' home-game attendance for the season will soar to a new high of 382,000. The previous season high for Ohio stadium was 336,802 last year.

Pearl Street Gridders Defeat N. Main for City Crown 13-0

Pearl Street defeated North Main 13-0 at the Harding Stadium Saturday to win the grade school football title in Gra-Y league play.

Playing in rain and sleet on a field where the footing was bad, Pearl dominated the play except for the last few minutes of the game. Pearl's line completely outcharged their opponents,and with T. Speros and Roebuck running the ends, it took but two quarters to decide the final outcome. A Roebuck to Cooper pass set up the first score as Roebuck, behind good blocking, swept right end for a 40-yard dash and a score. The conversion was scored by T. Speros who ran it over. The next score came quick as McDaniel of Pearl intercepted an intended Russel to Delong pass on his own 30-yard marker and carried it to the North Main 10 before Russel brough him down from behind. T. Speros ran the ball over on the next play on a wide run around left end.

The second half was even until the last few plays when Russel of North Main broke loose for a 30 and 18-yard dash. The game ended with North Main on Pearl's 15-yard line.

OHIO TEAMS SUFFER IN FOREIGN BATTLES

Only Ashland, O. S. U. Win Out-of-State Tilts.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 12 — Ohio's brand of college football was a little the worse for wear today.

Miami, Cincinnati, Wooster, Wilberforce and Ashland set out Saturday to uphold the honor of Buckeye football against foreigners, and only Ashland brought back a victory. Ohio State eked out a 14-0 win at Pittsburgh.

Miami made a brilliant showing, however, even in losing to Purdue, 21 to 7 The Boilermakers, beaten only once this season, had to battle all the way. And had it not been for a fumble in the end zone in the closing minutes, the Purdue margin might have been only one touchdown.

Cincinnati and Wooster were given sound thrashings, the Bearcats weakening in the last half to take 20 to 0 thumping from Detroit and Wooster absorbing a 66 to 0 shellacking from Western Michigan. Wilberforce dropped a 7 to 3 decision to the Godman Army Air Force team.

Ashland Rallies

Ashland had to rally for two touchdowns in the last minute and a half to nip Albion college, 13 to 6. With less than two minutes to go, Kenny Funk put the Eagles in front on a smash from the six-yard line Doc Grover followed that up seconds later by intercepting an Albion pass and running 52 yards to clinch the verdict.

Cincinnati was all that Detroit could handle in the first half of their game, piling up 106 yards while holding the Titans to a minus 12. But the Detroiters in the last two periods scored three times.

Capital trimmed Wittenberg, 19 to 0, to grab second place behind Oberlin in the Ohio conference championship competition. It was the Lutherans' fifth conference triumph as against single setback by Otterbein.

Baldwin-Wallace, dropped to third place by the Capital victory, took a 33 to 7 beating from Ohio university. Power plunges by Dominic Musille and the accurate passing of Ralph Sayer were more than the Yellowjackets could cope with.

Muskies Win 6-0

Muskingum also went outside the conference and squeezed out a 6 to 0 conquest of Fletcher General hospital. Chuck Green scored the only touchdown of the game on a two-yard plunge climaxing a 64-yard drive.

Kenyon took a 26 to 13 beating from Heidelberg and those 13 points were the first Kenyon had scored in five games. It was Heidelberg's first triumph of the season.

Otterbein in its game with Ohio Northern never was threatened as it grabbed a 27 to 6 decision.

Pro Football Race Tied Up in Knot

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 12—It will be at least two weeks before the principals in the National Football league intersectional title playoff can be determined—and there isn't any surety today about which clubs will be named then.

Green Bay, the defending champion, is virtually out of any title consideration. Cleveland and Detroit are tied for the lead in the western section. Philadelphia, in second place in the eastern division, still has a chance to get into the playoffs although trailing Washington.

Cleveland and Detroit meet at Detroit Thanksgiving day Washington and Philadelphia meet at Philadelphia Nov. 25.

Yesterday Detroit beat the Chicago Bears, 35 to 28, while Cleveland handed Green Bay a 20-7 beating, the third in seven starts for the champion Packers.

Washington beat the Boston Yanks, 34 to 7. Philadelphia romped over New York 38-17.

Army-Navy Classic on Dec. 1 To Be "Big Game" of Season

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Now that Navy's intricate "T" machine has begun to click, the Middies' Dec 1 clash with all-conquering Army shapes up as a first rate championship contest.

The Midshipmen served notice on the Cadets they would be ready to roll in the Philadelphia fracas by the ease with which they bowled over a spunky Michigan club 33-7, at Baltimore Saturday.

The Navy's harnessed power will be unleashed Saturday against poor little Wisconsin, beaten 28-14 by Northwestern This Baltimore tilt is Navy's last prep before the "big game."

Army Takes on Penn

Baptist Conference To Be Held At Trinity Church

Meeting Is One of Ten To Be Held in Ohio Churches of Denomination.

One of a series of planning conferences in Ohio for the denominational Christian Life Crusade to be launched by the Northern Baptist convention the first of the year, will be held in Marion Thursday. The event will be held in Trinity Baptist church with afternoon and evening sessions and representatives from churches of the Marion, Mansfield and Mt. Vernon Baptist associations will attend. Mrs. J. B. Holloway is the chairman for the conference here. There are 55 churches in this area with membership of 21,413.

The Christian Life crusade has been planned "as an answer to the summons of God and the needs of the world," denominational leaders have stated. Subjects for consideration and action include "The Church and Its Ministry to Returning Service Men and Women," "The Church and Its Program of Evangelism," "The Church and Its Program for Christian Teaching," "The Church and Its Program for Christian Social Righteousness," "The Church and Its Missionary Outreach" and "The Church and Its Growth in Stewardship."

Ten Ohio Conferences.

Two hundred and fourteen crusade conferences are to be held in the Northern Baptist convention, ten in Ohio.

The afternoon session of the conference here will open at 3:30 o'clock with a devotional service and statement of purpose and plan of the training conference by Dr. Paul J. Morris of Granville. At 4 p. m. there will be simultaneous group conferences on evangelism, stewardship and social righteousness in charge of Dr. Ernest Hon's of Charleston, W. Va., Rev. Gordon Withers of Spencer, W. Va., and Dr. Hugh Burr of Rochester, N. Y.

After an intermission the group conferences will continue at 5 and dinner will be served at 5:30. Group conferences on ministry to servicemen and women, missions and Christian teaching at 7:30 will be directed by Rev. Fred Baldus of Franklin, Ind., Rev. Ralph G. Schell of Chicago, Ill., and Dr. John W. Elliott of Phillipi, W. Va. Following intermission the group conferences will resume at 8:30 and at 9:20 there will be an assembly of all groups for an inspirational message and prayer.

Conference Chairmen.

Conference registration chairman is Mrs. J. R. McCain; literature, Mrs. Clyde Morehouse, dinner, Mrs. Edwin Price. Officially representing Trinity church are Dr. Ambrose Bailey, interim minister, and Rev. J. B. Holloway, pastor. Church chairman of the Crusade is Dail Gorman; evangelism, A. J. Tower; missions, Mrs. R. A. Maxim; stewardship, S. T. Gracely; social righteousness, Mrs. McCain; ministry to servicemen and women, Frank Kette and R. A. Maxim; Christian education, Mrs. Glenn Wymer.

CHURCH GROUP ELECTS

Officers were elected at a meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of Calvary Evangelical church, Thursday night in the church parlors. They are: Miss Marie Stull, president; Mrs. George Bensley, first vice president; Mrs. J. W. Baker, second vice president; Miss Maxine Good, third vice president; Miss Vera Stull, recording secretary; Miss Ruth Zachman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Irene May, treasurer. Mrs. Paul Lister was elected mission band superintendent and Mrs. Parks Kennedy, Little Herald superintendent.

Miss Maxine Good was in charge of the program which included the lesson study by Miss Ruth Zachman, Mrs. Robert Faulkner and Miss Marie Stull. Miss Medella Seiter conducted the devotions and current events were given by Mrs. J. W. Baker. The stewardship lesson was by Mrs. C. Z. Zachman and a thankoffering playlet was presented by Mrs. Ellis Epley, Miss Ruth Elder Corwin and Mrs. Avis Zachman. Miss Betty Bowman, accompanied at the pano by Mrs. J. W. Baker, sang a solo and the annual thankoffering was taken. The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. C. R. Beerbower.

GIVE TO ORPHANS' HOME

Mrs. William Rasey entertained the Ladies' Aid and Mission society of Trinity Lutheran church Thursday afternoon at her home on route 4, south of Marion. The group voted to contribute $15 to an orphans home in Indiana as a Christmas gift.

Plans were made to hold election of officers and a Christmas exchange at the next meeting, which will be at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Lust on Lincoln avenue Dec. 13. Devotions were conducted by Mrs. Paul Naher and Mrs. Grover Lichtenberger presented the lesson topic. Bible study was led by Mrs. Chris Laucher.

Guests were Mrs. Carl Hoch, Mrs. Ray Hedges, Mrs. Harold Rasey and Miss Lucille Rasey.

TWO PROJECTS BEFORE CITY COUNCIL TONIGHT

Airport and Sewer Plans To Be Discussed.

City council at its meeting tonight will discuss plans for putting into operation two city projects made possible by the passage of the airport and sewer program bond issues in last Tuesday's election.

Council will discuss the government's appraisement of $67,500 on 644 acres of Scioto Ordnance Plant, land which the city proposes to buy for an airport. Council also is expected to ask City Solicitor Edwin B. Spohn for an opinion on title to the land. This will open the way for council to decide on the price the city will bid for the tract.

Discussion of the sewer program is expected to be on methods of getting the projects under way.

Legislation for the purchase of a new police cruiser also expected to come up for action tonight.

ATTLEE

MacKenzie King of Canada that:

1. Unless atomic and other discoveries are channeled into controlled uses for peace they will be given over to war-making purposes.

2. The best way to channel these discoveries into proper uses is to share them with other nations—once safeguards for the future are set up.

The official added that any pooling by the three countries holding the secret of the atomic bomb, would require co-operation by Russia, France and the other United Nations, who would be asked to make their own developments available to the pool.

Talked On Cruise

Mr. Truman, Attlee and King returned last night from a nine-hour cruise on the Potomac river where they continued discussions begun Saturday.

At a state dinner Saturday night, Mr. Truman said the discussions were being approached "prayerfully" in the hope of agreements and policies "which till make the United Nations a living, moving, active program."

Attlee said "what we need most of all is a universal foreign policy x x x directed not to any immediate aim of any particular country but x x x conceived in the interest of all the people of the world."

EX-CHAPLAIN TALKS AT YOUTH LUNCHEON

Rev. J. B. Holloway Tells of Life on Okinawa.

Rev. J. B. Holloway, who returned to this country recently from duty as chaplain in the Pacific area, spoke at the third Fellowship luncheon of the United Christian Youth movement Friday noon. The luncheon was served at Central Christian church to approximately 100 students of the city high schools and their guests.

Greetings, congratulations and encouragement were expressed by F. F. Hill, superintendent of city schools and by A. C. May, Harding High school principal, guests. Other guests included Major D. W. McCreight and Mrs. Holloway. Joyce Bohyer led group singing and Paul McAlister presided.

Rev. Holloway displayed several articles which he brought back from Okinawa and Japan. He described the people on Okinawa, some of their customs, their school system which he said is surprisingly up to date, their poverty, and their need for friendship and for the Christian message of which they are greatly appreciative. He appealed to the young person looking out on the world today to invest his or her life, "where it will count most." It was announced because of the Thanksgiving holiday the next luncheon meeting, which was to have been in two week, will be held Dec. 14 at the United Brethren church. Rev. Eldred Johnston, host pastor, pronounced the benediction.

Two Injured as Car Hits Pole Near City

Miss Dolores Brady, 18, of 160½ North Main street was admitted to the Marion City hospital, suffering from deep cuts on the forehead and knee, the result of an automobile accident Sunday at 7:15 p. m.

Wesley Leroy Sharp, 17, of 784 East Farming street was treated for head injuries and released immediately. They were taken to the hospital in the M. H. Gunder and Sons ambulance.

According to a report of the state highway patrol, Sharp who was driving the car, attempted to make a turn from the Keener pike into the Campbell road one mile west of Marion and the car skidded in the loose gravel and struck a telephone pole. Only slight damage was done to the car.

Driver Hurt as Auto Overturns Near City

Charles Reeder, 21, of 287 Park boulevard, sustained slight cuts and bruises about 1:30 a. m. Monday when the car he was driving turned over on route 30 south, one mile west of Marion.

Reeder was driving west when he swerved to avoid a car coming out of Fairground street, the state highway patrol reported. The car, which turned over, was considerably damaged. He was given first aid and taken to his home.

SERVICES AT EPWORTH ENTER SECOND WEEK

Dr. Akers Calls Man Link Between Earth and Heaven.

The second week of special services at Epworth Methodist church opened last night with Dr. L. R. Akers of Steubenville as the preacher. The meetings will continue through next Sunday. A special number was presented by the choir, and a solo. The Name of Jesus" was sung by M. and Mrs. C. H. Bixler. Dr. Akers spoke on the twenty-sixth verse, chapter 16 in the book of Matthew, "For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul."

He declared that man is the central link connecting earth and heaven, man is the center of creation." No one has seen the human soul and only Christ sees its full value. Man knows less about himself than anything in creation. Man made in the image of God, is the master of the universe. He is a progressive creature, the only creature which knows good and evil. Man is a deathless creation eternal. Christ gave himself a ransom that any man, regardless of race or color, education or wealth, might be saved. There is no alibi when a sinner stands before the throne of God. God has done everything. He can to keep man out of hell. He gave His only Son. The greatest question ever before man, then, is this, 'What shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?'"

Tonight will be men's night sponsored by the Smart class and the Clark class, and Dr. Akers will preach on "The Bread and Butter Value of Religion."

WED AT BUCYRUS

BUCYRUS, Nov. 12—Miss Eleanor McMichael, daughter of L. E. McMichael, 615 South Walnut street and Charles E. Martin of Mansfield, son of Mrs. Anna Martin of Steubenville exchanged marriage vows in St. Paul's Lutheran church Thursday. The Rev. J. David Manfort read the service. The bride has been employed as a secretary and receptionist in the office of Dr. W. G. Talbott. Attendants were Miss Rosemary Kehrer and John Gossett, the latter of Mansfield.

to "Almighty God, who blessed the arms of our brave fighting men," for the victories over Germany and Japan.

Paying tribute to the fallen of World Wars I and II, he closed with a quotation from General Douglas MacArthur's address aboard the USS Missouri at the Japanese surrender ceremonies.

VFW Program

The Veterans of Foreign Wars also held a commemoration service over station WMRN Sunday. The speaker was Norvall Foreman, a veteran of World War I and a member of the VFW. He said that "members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are staunch champions of adequate preparedness but we also believe that the United Nations charter points the way to the day when large standing armies will no longer be necessary and the peace of the world will be preserved through international unity. We have faith in the objectives of the United Nations charter and its power to prevent another world war."

He also said that "we have three dates to remember when we speak of victory for democracy in the future. There is Nov. 11, 1918, when Germany begged for an Armistice; May 7, 1945, when Germany lost another campaign for world domination; and Aug. 14, 1945, when the Japanese military leaders cried for mercy and all fighting ended.

at public square under sponsorship of the county joint veterans commission. Several hundred [illegible] marched to the square. A detachment from Crile Army hospital fired a salute.

The county's 71 Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts cooperated in an historical pageant, to be presented at [illegible] p. m. in public hall, on the struggle for freedom from the Revolutionary war to the present.

Brig. Gen. James B. Newman, an atomic bomb expert, headed the speakers.

Attlee, King Honor U. S. Unknown Soldier

By The Associated Press

Americans still sobered by a second World war just won paused again today to pay tribute to those who fell in the conflict a generation ago.

The Sunday anniversary led to a two-day observance.

In Washington yesterday Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain and Mackenzie King of Canada joined President Truman in placing wreaths at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Today General of the Army Dwight D Eisenhower was due in Boston from Europe to take part in a parade. Admiral William F Halsey was the central figure in another big city celebration at Chicago.

Elsewhere there were Armistice programs yesterday in London, Paris, Algiers, Tokyo and Saigon, Indochina. In Tokyo, a crowd of 70,000 occupation troops watched a rodeo.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle of France and former Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain led the celebration in Paris before the tomb of France's unknown soldier at the Arc de Triomphe. In London, King George VI placed a wreath of Flanders poppies at England's national memorial.

At most of these far-away places American troops paraded.

Ohio's World War II Vets in Spotlight

By The Associated Press

Ohioans who shouldered arms to help America win World War II were in the spotlight today as the state observed Armistice day, the legal holiday marking the end of the first global conflict 27 years ago.

Since Nov. 11 fell on Sunday, a statute enacted by the legislature sets Ohio's official observance today. State, federal, city and county offices throughout the state were closed, as were many business establishments and schools.

Churches held special services yesterday.

Some 40 military organizations of men of both wars participated in a parade at Columbus.

State and city officials and high-ranking Army and Navy officers were in the reviewing stand in front of the state house.

At Ohio State university student veterans of World War II joined members of the campus American Legion post in placing memorial wreaths in front of the administration building.

Cincinnati's parade of veterans' organizations also included 4,500 Boy Scouts.

Brig. Gen. Harold C Vandermeer, commanding general of the Fifth Artillery division, with headquarters at Camp Campbell, Ky., was to address a civic luncheon.

At Cleveland services were held

HIGH-POINT GI'S PUT HEAT ON WASHINGTON

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—The wails of high-point G.I.'s marooned around the world are reaching Washington in increasing volume.

A spokesman for the War Shipping administration—which transports most of the troops—acknowledged today the "heat is getting hotter" to bring home all men eligible for discharge.

But, he said, too many factors enter into the situation for an overnight solution.

He declared the War Shipping administration merely follows orders from the joint chiefs of staff, picking up troops "when and where we're told." He insists WSA is meeting all these schedules.

There was no comment from the joint chiefs, but Army spokesmen said a scarcity of seamen is an important factor in troop movements.

They added, however, that the Army expects to be only seven days behind its troop return schedule by January 1.

Roughly 500,000 men a month are being brought home aboard Navy combat vessels, 200 Army ships and 470 operated by the War Shipping administration.

The WSA hopes to be "out of Europe" by the end of January, and out of the Pacific by the end of June.

Each theater commander had the final say as to which would go home and when. This undoubtedly is keeping some highpoint men abroad.

STRIKES

CIO Steelworkers, who seek a $2 daily pay raise.

Auto's "Big Three" — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—remained silent as a CIO United Auto Workers strategy committee put the union's strike threat on a 24-hour basis.

As results of a strike vote taken among 900 AFL employes of the Northland Greyhound bus lines were awaited today, a showdown neared in the strike of other AFL bus drivers in 19 states east of the Mississippi.

Union representatives and officials of the Pennsylvania and Central Greyhound line will meet tomorrow in Philadelphia to discuss the union's wage demands.

A strike of AFL drivers and other employes of the Southwestern Greyhound lines appeared stalemated. Negotiations have been postponed indefinitely.

MARKETS CLOSED TODAY

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Various stock and commodity markets closed down today as the nation continued to observe Armistice day inasmuch as the actual holiday fell on Sunday yesterday. All major New York exchanges were closed. Chicago and most other grain and livestock markets shut down.

CONGRESS

tists protested the commission's powers under the bill were too sweeping and the controls too strict.

Nine members of the committee Saturday night issued a caustic minority report, backing up the scientists and demanding that the whole subject be reopened before the bill is sent to the house floor for debate. One of the nine dissenters is a Democrat, the rest are Republicans.

To Vote on Training

Military Training — The same committee also has to vote on whether to continue its hearings on the politically-potent issue of universal service.

Rep. Short (R-Mo.) threw the whole schedule off by demanding the committee postpone further consideration until next year or until the senate—which has done nothing on the subject—passes a training bill.

Chairman May (D-Ky) called a halt to the hearings until tomorrow to marshal supporters. Both sides say they have the votes to win.

Jobs—Democratic Leader Barkley of the senate says he's determined congress can't talk of a holiday recess until it sends the so-called full employment bill to President Truman. The senate has passed this bill—in a modified form—but the house hasn't had a chance to act on it yet.

Wants Hoover on List

Pearl Harbor—The senate-house committee set up to find out the real story behind the Pacific military disaster has decided tentatively on 18 witnesses for the hearings that start Thursday. Rep. Keefe (R-Wis.) said the list is all right "as far as it goes" but isn't complete. Keefe says FBI Chief J Edgar Hoover and some of his agents who were in Hawaii at the time of the Japanese attack ought to be added to the list.

Another issue likely to stir up a fight is a bill by Rep. Sol Bloom (D-N Y) to provide UNRRA with a second $1,350,000,000 appropriation. Bloom says he wants the money voted for the relief agency without any strings, such as the so-called free press amendment the house recently tacked on to a $550,000,000 UNRRA bill the senate still has to act on that measure.

Most birds, constantly active and sleeping little, burn themselves out in a few years.

HIROHITO TOPS REDS' WAR CRIMINAL LIST

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Nov. 12 — Emperor Hirohito heads a war criminal list being prepared by the fledgling Japanese Communist party because he must share responsibility for the Pearl Harbor attack, Yoshio Shiga, one of the party's leaders, said today.

The emperor, said Shiga, should be exiled to China under allied surveillance.

The Communist party announced it would sponsor a nationwide campaign to investigate Japanese war criminals—starting on Dec. 8, the Pearl Harbor anniversary.

General MacArthur's headquarters surveyed results of Allied occupation policies and reported diplomacy and directives have shattered the nation's war-minded spiritual and economic control systems as effectively as bombs destroyed its cities and factories.

CLEVELAND ATTORNEY ENTERS SENATE RACE

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Nov 12 -Marvin C. Harrison, Cleveland attorney, takes to the hustings this week in his second attempt to gain the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator.

Harrison, defeated by William G. Pickrel of Dayton for the nomination last year, announced his candidacy Saturday and reported he would open his campaign Nov. 15 with an address over radio station WHK.

Harrison declared "it is widely believed that the Republican candidate for this office (senator) will be . . . former Gov. John W. Bricker."

The announcement said:

"I shall be a candidate for the Democratic nomination as United States senator in the May primary.

"My reasons for this decision are very simple.

"Ohio has recently returned Robert A. Taft to the United States senate. That, it seems to me, was a dreadful calamity. Now we have the prospect that he may be joined by another Republican senator of almost exactly similar views. And the prospect of doubling the Taft influence is nothing less than appalling.

"Senator James Huffman is undoubtedly a well meaning gentleman. But there is absolutely nothing in his record that indicates the slightest desire or ability to champion effectively the cause of international cooperation, or to tell the truth—the harsh, bitter truth — about, Taft, Bricker and company.

TOWNSEND HITS TAX

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 12 — Terming the present income tax system "grossly unfair," Dr. Francis E. Townsend, author of the Townsend plan, proposes substituting a three per cent tax on gross income above the first $100 on every citizen and corporation in the United States. He spoke at the closing session of a convention of 350 Ohio clubs here yesterday.

Evangelistic Retreat Held at Church Here

First U. B. church here was host to an evangelistic retreat for churches of the Marion district yesterday afternoon. Rev. Howard Hammer of Cardington gave echoes from a Sandusky conference retreat held at Fostoria last week and an open forum on methods of evangelism followed. The session was closed with a consecration service in charge of the host pastor, Rev. Garrison Roebuck. A series of meetings was set to be held in various churches of the district to plan for local evangelistic campaigns.

JACKSON ASKS KRUPP BE REPLACED BY SON

By The Associated Press

NUERNBERG, Nov. 12. — Justice Robert H. Jackson, United States prosecutor, requested the international military tribunal today to substitute Alfried Krupp, son of Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach, as a defendent in the war crimes trials. Jackson filed his motion because the elder Krupp, head of the huge German armament and steel trust, is too ill and aged to appear for trial.

If Jackson's motion is granted, a postponement of ten days to two weeks in the start of the historic trial is almost certain. The trial had been scheduled for Nov. 20.

The British prosecutor, Sir David Maxwell-Fyfe, declared Great Britain preferred to try the elder Krupp in absentia if necessary, because his name was a household word in the minds of the British public, which would resent any postponement.

Alfried Krupp is interned by the British army which occupies most of the Krupp works.

Gambler Awaited In Cleveland Slaying

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12—Cleveland Heights police today awaited the return home of a 35-year-old local gambling operator to question him in connection with the mysterious slaying of Mrs. Dorothy Dolin.

Lt. Lawrence G. Denk, chief of Heights detectives, quoted the gambler as saying in a telephone conversation that "the mob picked somebody to knock off Dolin's wife." Denk said the gambler was now out of town.

FIRE HITS CLEVELAND

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12—A multiple-alarm fire swept a four-story east side business and residential building here yesterday, causing $105,000 damage and routing 65 residents. Fire Chief James F. Granger reported. He said the fire, of undetermined origin, apparently started in the basement of an ice cream store.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

AS I heard Olina reciting Georges' last encomium of her, and saw the rapt look upon her face when she uttered the words, I could not decide which impulse I wished to follow, that of sweeping her into my arms and kissing her tenderly, or of wishing myself on a magic carpet to the side of Georges, where I could indulge myself in boxing the kingly ears until they rang.

But I could not reach Georges, and I could Olina, so I put my arms around her, and kissed her warmly.

A Lucky Man

"My dear, dear girl!" I whispered. "Georges is a very lucky man, and I am sure your fears are unjustified. I do not believe that, now he knows you love him, he ever will look at another woman again."

I knew that Dicky would tell me I was "lying in my teeth," instead of "like a gentlewoman," but I did not care. If ever a woman were entitled to happiness, it was this exiled princess who was lavishing so much, risking so much, in a game in which I feared the cards were stacked against her.

"I wish I could believe you—and Georges," she said wistfully. "He swore that to me before he left."

Then a smile infinitely sad, yet with a touch of calm understanding in it, curved her lips.

Believed It Himself

"And do you know, Auntie Madge, I think he believed it himself while he was saying it," she said.

I laughed with purposeful merriment, and with a distinct lifting of my spirits. If she could infuse that touch of amusement into her recollections of Georges, I was not so afraid of her future happiness.

"Of course he did, darling," I said.

Then I made my voice serious. "Do you mind if I speak quite freely to you, Olina?" I asked.

The elfin amusement faded from her eyes and was replaced by a look of such gratitude and affection that I felt my heart swings vibrating as if they were those of a violin suddenly swept by powerful, skilled fingers.

"Mind!" she repeated scornfully. "There is nothing you cannot say to me. You ought to know that. Just look at the way I have been pouring out my heart to you, telling you things, sacred things, I ought never to have voiced!"

Natural Reaction

I had known that very natural reaction would come to her, once her storm of emotion was over, and I dealt with it first before I went on to my real message.

"Ordinarily, my dear, I should agree with you," I said in matter-of-fact tones, and pretended not to see the start of surprised chagrin she gave.

"But," I went on, "yours is an extraordinary case. You are so keyed up emotionally, that you must find some outlet or the dam will burst, carrying you down to nervous wreckage and exhaustion.

"I count myself fortunate indeed to have been at hand at the right moment," I went on. "If you had said these things to your mother, or to a girl of your own age, you would always have regretted it.

A "Father Confessor"

"But I flatter myself that you may regard me as a sort of father confessor. In the first place you honored me with your confidence once before, and, on my honor, what you said has lain deep and unremembered in my heart, except when necessity brought it back to my memory. And you may be sure that what you have said will also be buried deep in my heart—and forgotten.

"My family and friends," I continued, "credit me with rather a remarkable memory. It is no virtue of mine; my little mother, long gone from me, trained it rigidly. But I also have the faculty of burying things I wish to forget, and keeping them forgotten until I have need of them. You may be sure that when next we meet, there will be no faintest thought in my mind of what you have just told me. If you can put the recollection out of your own mind, it will be as if you never had said anything about your last interview with Georges. Do you believe me?"

FALL WEATHER MAY CURTAIL OHIO CROPS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 10—Production of six of Ohio's larger crops may fall sharply this year because of unfavorable October weather the state reporting service announced today.

Soybeans, potatoes, buckwheat, cigar tobacco, apples and grapes are expected to fall below recent high yields, the service bulletin said.

The corn yield, forecast at 176,988,000 bushels for 1945, will be the second highest on record, however.

Rains early in the month delayed harvesting and normal wheat seeding operations through the state and continued heavy rains in the northeastern counties further hindered harvest of other crops, the report said.

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M. D.

Constant Head Cold

A cold causes uncomfortable symptoms, not the least of which is the continued nasal discharge. here is a disorder known as vasomotor rhinitis, which also causes a continued discharge from the nose. The patient complains of sneezing, blocked nasal passages and dripping from the back part of the nose into the throat.

In fact, the patients often say that they have a feeling of having a constant head cold. They may also state that they have a sensation of smothering, due to inability to breathe through the nose, and there may be dryness of the throat. From time to time there may be vague headaches in the front part of the head.

X-rays of the sinuses, as a rule, do not show anything abnormal. Sometimes there is coughing, due to the dripping into the throat. On examination of the nose, it is found that the lining membrane is either beefy red in color, or is pale and bluish-tinged, as well as swollen and waterlogged.

According to Doctor William P. E. Paterson of Ottawa, Canada vasomotor rhinitis is due to a generalized upset of the nervous system and is not found in normal happy people. He thinks that there is an increase in the number of these cases since the onset of the war, due to worry and disturbed home conditions, and that the patient cannot have any benefit from treatment until he has complete peace of mind.

However, there are other things, such as weather conditions, which contribute to the occurrence of the disorder. The patients are worse in cold and damp weather. Certain disturbances of the glands of internal secretion may also play a part.

In treating vasomotor rhinitis, removal of tension and strain is important. Gland extracts, particularly those from the sex glands, have brought relief in some cases. Drugs such as ephedrine, which shrink the lining membrane of the nose, are helpful but should not be used too often. Sedative drugs are helpful in highly-strung patients.

(Dr. Bundesen will answer letters containing medical questions only through his columns.)

Reconversion Nearly Complete in Industrial Warren Region

(This is another in a series of articles prepared especially for The Associated Press by writers on the staffs of member newspapers. They trace the progress of reconversion of business and industry in Ohio since the end of the war.)

* * *

By HELEN M. HEY
Of The Warren Tribune Chronicle

WARREN, Nov 10—Industrial Warren is fast getting back into its peacetime stride with reconversion in all but two of its 15 major plants at the near-completion point.

These two exceptions are factories which have problems peculiar to the average. They are presently on peacetime production, but at reduced rate. Time will bring their solution.

Because of its steel plants and lamp works this city of diversified industry escaped deep reconversion wounds." Steel plants and lamp works have no reconversion problems other than a quick changeover in types of products.

The majority of the Warren industries are at least 75 to 85 per cent reconverted, with some even nearer the finishing mark than this. For example, the Mullins Manufacturing Corp., which has plants in Salem and Warren, expected to be in full peace-time production by the first part of November.

Saw End Coming

A number of plants, sensing the end of the war in advance, started gearing for reconversion three or four months ahead of V-J day. When victory came, along with its war contract cancellations, they were ready to take immediate steps toward producing for peace needs.

The Packard Electric Co., a division of General Motors Corp., was set back in reconverting by a seven-week production workers strike. The walkout occurred Aug. 31, just 16 days after the end of World War II.

The workers returned to their Jobs Oct. 23, but as a result of the strike Packard was delayed seriously in reconverting. Today, the plant is turning out commercial materials at a rate as high as possible while reconversion goes on at the same time. The strike also, according to authoritative reports, discourage an expansion program planned for the local division by General Motors.

War Plant Closed

While there were no permanent shut-downs in Warren with the war's end, employment here was affected by the closing of the nearby Ravenna Ordnance Center.

Like a barometer, employment figures best reflect the progress of reconversion in Warren's plants.

Records of the United States employment Service office show that employment in the city's 15 top war industries totaled 16,900 V-J day.

By Sept. 15 war contract cancellations and reconversion had caused 1,169 layoffs, most of them temporary.

The USES Oct. 15 report showed employment for the 15 plants had risen to 16,219 persons, just 681 less than the V-J day total.

Female employment has been on the decline since war production ended, with male hiring climbing so that as of Oct. 15 there were 11,957 men working, or 64 more than the 11,893 V-J day male total.

USES manager R. G. Ingersoll reports seven of Warren's 15 major plants anticipate increased employment within the next 45 days, indicating peacetime production will get into full swing within that period. Most of the others, it is said, will be adding workers as their reconversion programs progress.

Figures Look Good.

"These figures," declared Ingersoll, "are concrete evidence of the ability of Warren's employes to readjust to after-war employment and predict favorable job opportunities here."

Between 25 and 30 per cent of the total employment in the Warren-Niles area was majorly affected by the changeover from war to peacetime output. The Ravenna arsenal closing affected 2,000 to 2,500.

Some industrialists believe complete reconversion depends mainly on two factors, namely, the rate of release for materials needed for production and labor.

It is stated authoritatively no further employment reductions are anticipated here unless they are caused by undetermined factors.

Among Warren's industries and some of their products are: Republic Steel Corp., which makes steel, sheet steel and tin plate; Copperweld Steel Co., electric steel; Thomas Steel Co., cold roll steel; Mullins Manufacturing Corp., washing machine tubs and kitchen units; Packard Electric, fractional horse power units and ignition cable; Peerless Electric Co., motors and blower outfits; Ohio Lamp Works and Trumbull Lamp Works, electric light bulbs; and Taylor-Winfield Corp., welding equipment.

ACCIDENT PREVENTION TO OPEN HERE FRIDAY

Red Cross To Sponsor Course of Instruction.

A 15-hour course on the prevention of accidents has been scheduled by the Marion County Chapter of the American Red Cross, starting Friday evening, Nov. 16, it was announced today. The course will be given in the chapter room starting at 8 p. m.

Emphasis will center on the prevention of accidents in the home and on the farm, B. B. Gallagher, chairman of the committee states. Immediately following the completion of the 15-hour course there will be an instructors course starting Dec. 3 and running through Dec. 7. Instructor for this will be Allard C. Hardy, special field representative of the Eastern area.

Figures compiled at National Red Cross headquarters show that over a period of the last 10 years, the yearly average of persons killed in home accidents totals approximately 31,500, and 24,300 were killed and 850 injured in traffic accidents. Figures show that approximately 4,500 farmers are killed at their work annually, representing 25 per cent of all persons killed in occupations, and that more than 300,000 farm people are injured each year in some type of farm accident.

JAP PREMIER VOICES HOPE

Shidehara, One of Few Optimists, Praises MacArthur Reform Policies.

By GLENN BABB
AP Foreign Editor

TOKYO, Nov 10 — Premier Kijuro Shidehara believes General MacArthur is moving "in a fair and effective manner" to carry out his program of ending militarism and establishing Democracy in Japan.

Many Japanese, he added, hope the American supreme commander will succeed in bringing freedom, and lasting peace to Japan.

This 73-year-old statesman, called from retirement to lead his conquered country through occupation and dictated revolutionary change, is among the few declared optimists in Japan.

"When we contemplate the American occupation as the result of disastrous defeat, we can't help some feeling of bitterness," he told me. "But we can also hope it will prove a blessing in disguise."

Shidehara was ambassador to Washington in the early 1920s and then gained fame as foreign minister in a series of liberal cabinets. He went into eclipse in 1931, after the militarists toppled the last such governments from power.

Whether Shidehara is capable of holding together a cabinet of revived liberals like himself and civil servants with little political background through such changes and face post-surrender ferments is a widely debated question. He made clear, however, he hopes to retain the office at least until elections for a new parliament, probably early in 1946. The consensus of Americans and Japanese is that he is not likely to survive the elections. The Japanese say he has been too long out of public life and lacks any important political support. The Americans say the demands of the occupation program are likely to prove too much for his physical and political strength.

Britain's limited monarchy system is a suitable pattern for Japan, he indicated. This would permit retention of the emperor as a constitutional monarch. A clause in the present constitution saying the emperor is "sacred and inviolate" is nothing more, Shidehara argued, than the British principle that "the king can do no wrong."

Piles
Are Never "Mild"
DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids) as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formation without tendency to heal themselves; instead, they are likely, if neglected to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting, predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling, and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief—written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties.

Why not call and learn of this method? The examination is free.

DENIES VALENTINO STORY

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 12—Alberto Valentino, a brother of the late Rudolph Valentino, last night denied a report that the film idol was once secretly wed to Marion E Wilson, former Ziegfeld Follies beauty. When Miss Wilson was taken to a hospital for treatment of an illness Saturday, her cousin, Perry Combs, Hollywood physical instructor, told reporters she and Valentino were married in 1925 and that a daughter born of the union was now in Europe.

RIVER MEN PROTEST DROPPING ENGINEERS

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Nov. 12 — Midwestern river and navigational interests, representing a large section of American "big business," called upon congress today to exempt civilian functions of the U S Army engineers from provisions of the reorganization bill.

"Army engineers have had American rivers and harbors under control for 125 years," observed O Slack Barrett, president of the Ohio Valley Improvement association. "Now, on the threshold of a huge postwar program including million dollars for flood prevention and control is no time to transfer these functions to untried hands."

An amendment to the reorganization bill, by which rivers and harbors activity would be exempted, was adopted by the senate 38 to 18 a fortnight ago. The senate however had virtually re-written a bill previously passed by the house and the whole legislation was referred to a senate-house sub-committee, which may report this week.

Social Affairs

MRS. LOUIS RUBECK, who has been honored with a number of social affairs since her recent wedding, was complimented with a 1 o'clock luncheon Saturday when Mrs. Mark Bowe and Miss Helen Bowe entertained at Hotel Harding. An arrangement of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums centered the table and favors of corsages in the same colors were presented the guests. Mrs. Rubeck, who was Miss Mary O'Connor before her marriage, was presented gifts from the hostesses.

THE Veterans Memorial Home will receive the proceeds from a benefit bridge to be held by the Servicemen's Wives club Wednesday evening, Nov. 21, at Hotel Harding. Plans were completed at a meeting of the club Wednesday evening at women's clubrooms in the YMCA, at which time Maj. L. H. Larsen was a guest speaker. Completing the program, which followed a dinner at 6:30 o'clock, was a piano number by Miss Patricia Lawtner. Mrs. Robert Conley is general chairman for the benefit, which will be held at 8 p. m. and tickets, selling for 50 cents, may be obtained from the members.

Mrs. L. E. Peck entertained a group of relatives and friends at her home on South Main street recently with a shower for her sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas B. Maloney whose husband, T. B. Maloney, gunner's mate (3-c), is expected to arrive from the Pacific war area in the near future.

The evening was spent socially and with card games. Guests were Mrs. Joseph Maloney, Mrs. V. W. Orth, Misses Nancy Peck, Mary Slamka, Betty and Alice Postel, Mary and Betty Stoneburner, Jean and Blanche Gruber, Billy Jean Faith, Gene Weaver, Marie Dagen, Mary Louise Jorden and Delores Blankenship.

Mrs. Mattie E. Dugan returned to her home on South Vine street Friday night after spending last week with her niece, Mrs. E. E. McAdams and family in Orrville, Ohio.

Marion Couple Mark 50 Years of Married Life

Mr. and Mrs. Raphael Kelly celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sunday with a family dinner at their home on Neil avenue.

Married Nov. 13, 1895, in Missouri, they moved to Marion from Kenton in 1917. Mr. Kelly, 77-year-old native of Hardin county was engaged in farming in this vicinity until he retired 12 years ago. Mrs. Kelly, 69, was born in Lawrence, Ky.

The table, lighted with gold tapers was centered with a cake decorated in keeping with the occasion and a matching color scheme was carried out in favors and table appointments.

Celebrating the occasion with them were seven children, Mrs. S. D. McBeth of Milburn avenue, Mrs. J. B. Jeffries of Edison, O., Mrs. Edward Davis of Kenton, Mrs. Glenn Jeffries of Redding, Calif., J. V. Kelly of North State street, Chester Kelly of Leader street and Burdetta Kelly at home, 13 grandchildren and three great grandchildren. All of the family attended except three grandsons.

SERVICES AT LARUE

Revival services which opened in the LaRue Baptist church last week will continue through Friday night, Rev. Douglas G. McCreight, pastor, announced. Rev. C. B. Jones, pastor of the Fite Memorial Baptist church in Marion, is the evangelist. His topic tonight will be "Justification by Faith." The services are each night at 7:30.

Ultra-violet rays and X-rays are used to detect retouchings on paintings.

Miss Loyer Weds Toledo Navy Man at Beech Church

MRS. J. R. SCHARER

Salem Evangelical church at Beech was the scene Saturday of the wedding of Miss Marguerite Loyer, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. McCluney of Forest street, and J. Ronald Scharer, Navy motor machinist's mate, first class, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Scharer of Toledo. The couple repeated the double ring ceremony read by the bridegroom's uncle, Dr. C. A. Ramey of Toledo, before the altar which was decorated with palms, white pompons and white tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, was attired in a soldier blue wool dressmaker suit with matching blue feather hat, and she carried a white Bible adorned with an orchid. Her jewelry was a double strand of pearls and matching earrings, gift of the bridegroom. Mrs. Alfred Laucher of near Marion, a sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a rose dressmaker suit with Navy accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Frank Stark of Toledo served as best man and ushers were a brother of the bridegroom, James Scharer of Toledo, and Harold Loyer, brother of the bride.

Miss Martha Greenawalt of Marion played the wedding music, which included "Together," "Always," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and the traditional wedding marches. Miss Naomi Mautz sang "Because," "The Lord's Prayer" and "I Love You Truly."

For her granddaughter's wedding Mrs. McChesney wore a black dress with black accessories and a gardenia corsage. The bridegroom's mother chose an aqua and black dress with which she wore an aqua feather hat and a gardenia corsage. A reception followed the wedding at the home of the bride's grandparents. The table was decorated with white pompons, and a three-tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature sailor and bride. Presiding at the table were Mrs. E. R. Fichtner of Marion, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Cecil Myers, aunt of the bridegroom.

The new Mrs. Scharer is a graduate of Harding High school. She attended Davis college in Toledo and was formerly employed in the payroll department of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. as a Comptometer operator. Her husband was graduated from Woodward High school in Toledo, attended Toledo university, and was in service on submarine duty in the Pacific area 20 months. After his present leave he will report to New London, Conn.

When the newly married couple left on a short wedding trip the bride was wearing black and white checked suit with a burma rose topcoat.

Former Galion Man Weds Tiffin Girl

Special to The Star

GALION, Nov. 12—A wedding in Tiffin Saturday is of interest to Galion friends and relatives. The single ring ceremony united in marriage Sue Frances Case, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Marcus Case of Tiffin, and Wayne M. Weber, son of Mrs. Minnie Weber, of Galion.

When Mr. and Mrs. Weber return from a wedding trip to New York City and other points of interest in the east, they will stop in Galion for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Goshorn. Later they will go to Cleveland to make their home where Mr. Weber will do interior decorating with Sterling-Welch company, a position he held before going into service three years ago.

Two Sons in Service Honored at Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fields entertained with a family dinner Sunday at their home on South High street. The occasion for the celebration was the arrival of their two sons, First Lt. Claude E. Fields and Cpl. Dale Fields and the departure of another son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fields of Toledo who are leaving for Florida.

Lt. Fields has returned after 32 months service in Africa, Sicily and England and Cpl. Fields served in Italy and with the occupation forces in Austria for 19 months. Both servicemen expect to receive discharges from the Armed forces in the near future.

Also present from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fields, Jr. and family of Toledo.

Fine Arts Program To Be Given at Federation Home

FINE Arts will be the theme of the November program for the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs Tuesday evening at the Federation home at 1126 East Center street. The program will be at 7:45 o'clock.

Highlights on the customs and lives of the Mexican people will be the topic of a talk by Mrs. C. G. Smith and she will illustrate her lecture with about 20 water color sketches which she made in Mexico last summer. While the guests are assembling, a musical setting for the talk will be provided by Miss Wanda McMahan and Mrs. Ralph Mills, who will play two piano duets, "Bolero," Moskowski and "Deep Purple," Peter DeRose.

The program will be in charge of the fine arts department of which Mrs. William Kimball is chairman. Members of clubs affiliated with the federation and patronesses are eligible to attend the federation programs. Patroness tickets may be obtained from a club member or at the federation home on the evening of the program.

Galion Driver Faces Charge in Accident

Special to The Star

GALION, Nov. 12—Gerald Hessey, 28, of 137 South Market street, was slated for a hearing in Mayor William Amann's court this afternoon on a charge of reckless driving following a collision between the taxi he was driving and an automobile driven by Mrs. Lowell Ness of South State road. The accident, according to the police report, occurred Friday night, when Mrs. Ness was driving north on the State road near the home of Mr. and Mrs. William MacAdam. She slowed down to turn into the drive when the taxi going the same direction, struck the left part of her car in attempting to pass her. Both cars were damaged.

Another accident, Friday night, took Ray Balliet, 22, of the North Market street road, to City hospital for treatment for concussion and bruises on the left wrist when he was struck by an automobile while walking to his home.

GALION, Nov. 12. — Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Strickler have been honeymooning in Columbus following their wedding Wednesday night at the Four Square Gospel church here. Rev. Oren Sheets officiated for the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the former Glorine Lucile Britton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denny Britton of Galion.

The couple was attended by Miss Dorothy Cook of Galion, and Wayne Britton, brother of the bride.

For the present the newlyweds will live with Mr. Strickler's mother, Mrs. Ada Strickler of south of Marion.

Couple Honored in Celebration of 50th Anniversary

A dinner and mock wedding Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Potter of the Columbus-Sandusky pike was in honor of their golden wedding anniversary. Rev. Norman Shellhase officiated when the couple exchanged vows in a mock ceremony at 4 o'clock, using a gold band ring and gold floral pin. Gifts from the group. The gifts were presented on a small gold colored pillow by Janet Baker of Attica, and flower girls were Peggy and Jerry Fetter. Mrs. Edna Berringer, sister-in-law of Mrs. Fetter, sang "Love's Old Sweet Song," after which the group sang several numbers, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Mary Jane Hodges.

Flowers decorated the rooms and a color scheme of gold was carried out. Decorations included a large cake and also individual cakes in white and gold, and appointments emphasized the golden wedding theme. Refreshments were served. Guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Junior Baker and children Marjory, Shirley, Janet and Eddie of Attica, Foster Dilsaver of Richwood, Mrs. William Kuehner, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Schwaderer and children, Donna Ruth and Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Fetter and children, Dick and Jerry, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fetter and daughter, Betty Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Fetter and son, Jack, Mr. and Mrs. Beaumont Bilger and daughter, Mary Elizabeth, Albert Fetter, Mrs. Mardell Fetter and daughter, Peggy, Mrs. Gertrude Fetter, Mrs. Edna Berringer, Mrs. Mary Jane Hodges and son, Gary, Mrs. Mildred Caldwell, of Marion, and Edward Heiby of Waldo.

Miss Baldwin Marries in Galion Ceremony

Special to The Star

GALION, Nov. 12—In an open church ceremony at 3 o'clock Sunday at the Market Street Methodist church, Maud Lucille Baldwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baldwin of the South Market street road, became the bride of Eugene Simon Sulser, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Sulser of the South street road.

The double ring ceremony was read by Rev. William H. Ayres. Carl Roderick, Ronald Rick, James Yonker and Kenneth Heiser were ushers.

Mrs. Ivan Beck of Galion was matron of honor; and Misses Betty Davis and Esther Foos, both of Galion, bridesmaids.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents was held for about 40 guests.

Former Teacher Named Hardin Service Officer

In charge of the potluck supper of the Child Conservation league Thursday evening at the school house were Mrs. Donald Hickman, Mrs. Carl Moser, Mrs. Weldon McNeal, and Mrs. Darius Moyer. Rev. J. R. Wynd gave devotions. Miss Marjorie Wynd, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Harold Young, sang two selections. V. J. Briegel gave a few remarks. Professor Collard of Ohio Wesleyan university showed moving pictures taken in Europe and England. Three new members were present, Mrs. V. J. Briegel, Mrs. Donald Almendinger and Mrs. Ralph Hawk.

Club Gives Program on Education Week

A program in observance of Education Week, Nov. 11 to Nov. 17, illustrated with motion pictures shown by Justin Parsell was given at a meeting of the Campbell School Community club Friday night at the school building.

The program consisted of a musical program directed by Mrs. Pauline Davis, a book review by Jude Campbell, and solos by Margie Parsell and Mrs. Phyllis Rinehart. Joyce Payne opened the meeting, Marjorie Roth gave the Scripture reading and the group was led in prayer by the First grade pupils. It was voted to purchase playground equipment.

Mrs. H. L. Malo was named social chairman and Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Goldie McLain were chosen to arrange the program for the December meeting.

Galion Woman's Body Is Found in Cistern

Special to The Star

GALION, Nov. 12 — Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Snyder funeral home for Mrs. Jeanette F. Ott, 49, of 433 West Payne avenue. Rev. Herbert S. Garnes Jr., pastor of First Lutheran church, will officiate and burial will be made in Fairview cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home.

Mrs. Ott's lifeless body was found in a cistern at her home, about 6 o'clock Sunday morning by her husband, Clyde Wesley Ott. She had been in ill health which was believed to be the cause for her taking her life, according to Crawford County Coroner O. R. Kackley.

A native of Galion, Mrs. Ott was born Aug. 28, 1896, a daughter of Frank and Alice (Mackey) Cook. She was married to Mr. Ott, Jan. 22, 1917.

Surviving besides her husband are five brothers and three sisters: Mrs. Cliff Crider of Carlsbad, New Mexico; Frank Cook, Miss Julia Cook, Guy Cook, Mert Cook and George Cook, Kenneth Cronenwett and Mrs. Gusta Sulser, all of Galion.

Mrs. Ott had spent all of her life in Galion. She was a member of First Lutheran church and the Daughters of America lodge.

"I AIN'T VERY MUCH, BUT..."

★ In the play Green Pastures, the character Noah observed, "I ain't very much, but I'se all I got." This is simple but eloquent reasoning.

The realization of responsibility to yourself and to others to be cheerful, sympathetic, and helpful is the basis of a sound personality. Ill and disgruntled people are a burden to all. Take good care of yourself. Do not forget that both your family physician and your pharmacist are on your side to help you stay well and happy. All you have to do is ask for their help. When ill, see your physician. We are fully equipped to fill your prescriptions and furnish the needed sickroom supplies.

Armistice

TIME and experience have reshaped the extravagant emotionalism of the first Armistice day in 1918. Twenty-seven years afterward the joy released by the end of World War I has changed to apprehension in the wake of World War II.

The end of another war in Europe has brought more awareness of troubles ahead than the military triumphs gained. We have earned a lull in the fighting—an armistice—but we have yet to earn the peace and security for which we fought.

This time there are no illusions about a war to end wars. The lesson has been grim and hard, but it has been thorough—wars settle nothing except the fate of warriors. Armies are not nations, but only the servants of nations. And nations themselves are the servants of ideas, good and bad.

No one thinks he knows on Armistice day in 1945 what so many thought they knew on Armistice day in 1918—that the idea of conquest by intrigue, threats and, ultimately, naked force had been conquered. The armistice is uneasy.

Even in Japan where the semblance of triumph has been easier to believe than in Europe, it is hard to know what has been the net gain of the tremendous effort expended to crush an aggressor. There is uncertainty here and abroad. We cannot be sure that we have won what needed to be won.

But uncertainty itself may be good. It is the product of experience. As long as it is not allowed to become despair, ultimate victory always will be potential. We know that the harder part of the fight to gain our ideals still lies ahead. The end of war is the beginning of opportunity.

The Presidency at Issue

THERE was launched in the U. S. senate last Tuesday the first full-size torpedo in the partisan battle for the presidency in 1948. Senator Wiley of Wisconsin rose to deliver a prepared manuscript sharply critical of President Truman's policies, as revealed to date. It was the first full-dress attack on Mr. Truman's leadership and was interpreted in Washington as evidence that the political truce which eased his first months in office is now a relic of wartime.

Senator Wiley acknowledged the high personal regard in which Mr. Truman's former colleagues in the senate still hold him. The criticism was of Mr. Truman's presidential character—his "lack of statesmanship," his compliance with the New Deal doctrine of spending, his apparent alliance with the CIO-PAC, his attitude toward strikes and his refusal to call a conference on the subject of military conscription, as proposed by Senator Wiley.

The specific counts in Senator Wiley's partisan indictment are relatively unimportant. The significance of the attack lies in its relation to the immediate future of party government. The presidency of the United States is at issue and with it the policies of the major political parties. Mr. Truman apparently has chosen to make his stand for popular favor on the same line that was adhered to by his predecessor: the line that is agreeable to CIO-PAC. It is beginning to look as if that organization were dictating national economic policy, through the mouth of a compliant chief executive.

"I offer these thoughts to the President," declared Senator Wiley, "in all humility, without rancor, without prejudice. America would indeed have an epic Thanksgiving if Harry Truman were soon to disown the prodigals who have squandered the substance of this nation for more than a decade."

National Defense Is Not Personal

IF SPOKESMEN for the armed services in the debate over better coordination of national defense were as mindful as they should be of public confidence, moderation would be the keynote of every statement.

Unfortunately, some of the spokesmen are acting as though defense were a personal argument to be settled by their own strong opinions.

Better coordination of the armed services is a subject with direct and heavy bearing on national welfare. There is still the undigested evidence of Pearl Harbor to remind professional militarists that arbitrary attitudes have led to disasters in the past and might lead to others in the future. There is the still unsolved problem of cooperative security to be considered. There are such closely related problems as the cost of maintaining security, the mustering of manpower, availability of military supplies and the industrial problems that the armed services must work out together for their common welfare and the welfare of the people. There is no place in so momentous a discussion for peevishness, jealousy, mistrust and bitter comments, lest the people come to believe what they came dangerously close to being forced to believe four years ago next Dec. 7—that their armed services were too concerned with defending what always had been done to be properly aware of what might have to be done.

Despite the atom bomb and all morbid speculation in regard to same, the true optimist feels that man is here to stay.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

John Q. Public Forgotten Man in Strikes.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—How men employed in unions are able to work against their own best interest to the damnation of the rights of the people can be told in the inside story of the Washington bus and street car strike on the very day of the labor-management national conference meeting here.

For 34 hours the transportation system of the nation's capital was completely stopped. Government employes managed to get to work and back because everyone who had a car brought it out and others hitch-hiked, but hours were required for many, some not getting home to dinner until after 9 p. m., or to work until noon, and a few being forced to walk the miles to and from.

News pictures were presented showing Waves or Wacs smiling and thumbing rides, and jokes were printed about the fellows who owned cars waiting for the prettiest girls, but the public was angry, silently, glumly, perplexedly angry.

Public Not Considered

How could they be otherwise when no one mentioned or considered their rights to public utility service from beginning to end? Public, press and government, in awe of this defiant power of the union, suffered with a passive fear—in a spirit that this was a contest of labor and capital into which it could not plunge or assist itself.

And for what? This is how it happened:

An unannounced after midnight meeting of the street car and bus workers was called in a burlesque theater. Many showed up with a half pint, or more, to see the night through. It was a secret meeting from which the press and public were excluded. The morning papers the day of the strike carried no warning in home delivery editions.

The workers voted it suddenly around 3 a. m. the first the average citizen heard of it was when he arrived at his street or bus station to find cues of people waiting. The strike had been called on a public-be-damned policy.

This was not a wild or new union, but an old, established AFL crowd, frequently called conservative. Due to war, it has many new women and men members, because the women have filled in to drive the electric cars. At the secret meeting, my government-observer informants tell me, the women were the extremists. They spoke and yelled louder than the men.

Indeed after the walk out had been voted, the meeting refused to listen to any reasonable voice of top national union leaders (who did not go in) or government authorities who tried to address the gathering and were shouted down. Published pictures show the employes in their convictions less so, glowering with rage.

The strike embarrassed the national union chief, who recognized it as did everyone, as an ironic comment on the labor-management conference. Management, however, sat back and looked at union discomfort in natural glee.

Now you might reasonably suspect the timing of this strike was for that purpose. My informants, who are as highly placed on the inside of the situation as it is possible to be, tell me no.

Line of Thinking

They think the employes just became obsessed with a desire to assert their power, particularly against the Truman administration and its national labor relations board as well as against the national union bigshots assembled for the labor-management conference. This was the key and secret behind the whole affair, not being published or publicly mentioned by anyone.

Indeed government, press and public reported the strike as if it was afraid of offending anyone. Thus reports were limited to the barest facts. No investigation of the cause or justice of the union claims was made. Only unrevealing statements issued by both sides were offered.

Truth is the union wage demand was a long running case, twice decided by the war labor board. On the first try for a 30 cents an hour increase, the company offered five cents but WPB threw the case out. In the second try, WLB authorized a seven cents an hour increase disguised as a bonus and the company agreed.

Backed by such a decision, the company naturally would not, and indeed, could not go further, while the union persisted in getting its demanded 30 cents (really not expecting to get that much.)

A strike called at such a time naturally could not be successful. By the second day, the men had lost their appetite to assert their power. They welcomed government conciliators for the arbitration they had spurned.

I suspect Mr. Truman's smart new labor-adviser-in-the-background, John R. Steelman, who knows labor more objectively than any man in the country, negotiated the settlement from his White House obscurity. And what did the unions get? A two weeks' truce to talk the matter over. The strike was wasted, utterly wasted.

Only sufferer was the public, the common man and woman worker, indeed the least well paid worker who could not afford a car, and the Army and Navy people and others who could not get one during the war shortage. I wonder when their silent anger will burst. It will one day.

Air Forces Streamline Research

By Paul B. Mason

Associated Press Writer

(First of a Series of Articles)

DAYTON, O. — Assembly line methods for scientific development of vital war and peacetime equipment have been set up by the Army's air planners here.

Fingertip controls have been established, says Col. T. B. Holliday, chief of the Equipment Laboratory of the Air Technical Service Command. Committee-management organization is combined with a rather glorified card-index file to get results with a constant attention to costs.

Instituted about a year ago on the basis of studies begun in the Spring of 1944, the system enabled marked speeding of certain critical items into combat zones during closing phases of the war.

"Bearing in mind that the end-product of this laboratory is the specifications for a given piece of equipment, whether an airplane or a gadget," Col. Holliday said, "we—and that means the 'top-side staff' on down through the branch chiefs—are organized into committees.

"During the war, cost was considered only in terms of victory.

"Under this system, however, a research or study project is defined and planned by committees in consultations between the laboratory planning and control office and developmental branches of the lab. Priority, the number of men and man-hours required and the allocation of funds are fixed according to the nature of the problem, the time and the estimated completion date."

All this data is recorded on "project cards".

The project is then assigned to one of the development branches, whose supervisor is responsible for its execution, but he, too, may draw upon the services of any member of the laboratory staff.

Progress is reviewed periodically and this data, too, is transcribed to the project cards.

The cards are photographed, with duplicate sets going to each subordinate unit concerned. A "master series" hangs on the walls of the laboratory "control room."

Approximately 20 new items of equipment have been developed so far this year, says Col. John G. Hopkins of Hampton, Va., assistant laboratory chief who, even before entering the Army, had achieved wide recognition as an industrial management expert. He is credited by fellow-officers with a major part in development of the system.

Col. Hopkins adds that numerous business efficiency organizations, industrial engineering firms and leading aircraft and motorcar manufactures have deluged the laboratory for details of the system. Many of them have been sending delegations to the field for a first-hand study of the setup.

Firemen Use Firewater

By The Associated Press

AUBURN, Me. — Firemen of rural Sabattus were undaunted by a scarcity of hydrants when they arrived to help the firemen of several towns subdue a shoe factory blaze. Accustomed to tapping country brooks to feed their hoselines, the Sabattus outfit dipped its pumper hose into a stream created by runoffs from the blazing factory, and shot the water right back into action.

It was Tuesday, Nov. 12, 1935.

Undaunted by cloudy skies, threats of rain and chill winds, approximately 200 women started out to canvass the residential districts for enrollments in the 1935 annual roll call of the Marion County Chapter of Red Cross.

Republican party organization leaders from the six counties of the Eighth Congressional district met with Chester C. Bolton, Republican congressman from Cleveland at Hotel Harding, to discuss the forthcoming national campaign.

County Relief Director John Abel announced that Marion county would receive $17,700 of a $2,000,000 appropriation for Ohio, to carry on the county's relief program. The figure was $4,515 under the amount allocated for the first half of the month and for each half of October.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann appealed to the supreme court to save him from the electric chair for the murder and kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. A 32-page petition filed by his counsel asked a new trial on the ground that the German carpenter had been convicted after a trial which resembled a "circus."

Completion and shipment of the world's largest power shovel dipper, capable of scooping up 32 cubic yards or 32 wagon loads of earth at one "bite" was announced by the Marion Steam Shovel Co.

John and Earl Castner celebrated their birthdays by entertaining 22 schoolmates at their home on South Prospect street.

Superintendent Jesse H. Mason reported that more than 1,500 persons visited the city schools during October, the largest visitation record in the school's history.

Smooth As —?

Silk stockings are on their last legs. When it was made known that a large stock of raw silk was available in Japan, American women still preferred to wait for nylon stockings. From 70 to 80 per cent of Japanese silk imports used to go into women's stockings.

Department of Commerce economists say the price of Japanese raw silk, produced with cheap labor, used to be held down by government subsidies. Japan sold silk at a loss to obtain dollar exchange for American scrap iron and steel and other war material. Without a subsidy, silk could not compete in price with the materials developed as substitutes.

Japanese silk may be imported for other uses, but the big American market is gone. Other silk producers, such as China and Italy, will be competing for the market that is left. In 1938 silk accounted for 14 per cent of the total value of Japanese exports.

GI College Wrinkle

By Rowland Evans, Jr.

By ROWLAND EVANS, Jr.

WASHINGTON—There's a peculiar wrinkle in the GI Bill of Rights of which a smart veteran might want to take advantage.

As the law is now written, a high school graduate veteran who can lay claim to the full amount of free education can get through four years of college and to within one year or less of a law degree, all within the allowed time limit.

Here's why and how:

Four years is the maximum time any veteran may get free schooling under the GI Bill.

Four years is four years . . . or is it? A school year is only eight or nine months. A calendar year is 12. But the four years allowed under the law are calendar years.

Now then—for each "ordinary school year" the government will pay up to $500 for tuition and other essential fees. That raises the question: How long is an "ordinary school year"?

Veterans administration has decreed that an ordinary school year is from 30 to 38 weeks.

No Time Out.

Before the war few colleges or universities allowed students to complete more than one school year in one calendar year.

But wartime lack of doctors, engineers and other specialists forced many schools to give year-around training.

Some schools which tried the heavy duty curriculum may retain it.

So, instead of using up his four allowance calendar years, the veteran can zoom through a four-year course in about two and a half years by cramming "normal school years" into that time. That leaves him a year and a half to get a start, and almost a finish, on a post graduate course. Of course he won't get any vacations to speak of.

Special Credit.

Another item, interesting to school-bound vets is the fact that credit for at least one semester's work will go to the average ex-GI.

After the last war American educators endorsed a program which gave a certain amount of blanket credit to all veterans. In many cases too much credit was given, and 42 per cent of all veterans who went back to duty with the books were forced to quit. They had been allowed to get in over their heads.

This time, in spite of the liberality most schools will extend to ex-servicemen, credit for things learned while in the service will not be granted haphazardly.

Allegory

Will H. Davis, former War Labor Board chairman and economic stabilization director, is credited in Washington with an atomic bomb allegory. It goes something like this:

The Archangel Michael, who had been in charge at the creation of the earth, had done a pretty good job. He had taken care of all the big things and had seen to it that they would work all right without too much worry to man himself.

But a lot of the little things, the Archangel Michael didn't take too much trouble to work out in detail, believing it would be just as well for man to figure those things out for himself. The result was that man sometimes got himself in trouble. There were fights, and every once in a while one of the wandering angels would come back and report to the Archangel Michael. "Things down on earth don't look so good. They're having another war down there and killing each other off."

The Archangel Michael would always pass this over. "It's a good earth," he would say, "and man's fundamentally all right. Give him a little time and he'll get over it."

That went on for war after war, but still man didn't seem to learn. Finally there was a war so big that nearly everybody was in on it and it looked as though man really was going to destroy himself. This time even the Archangel Michael was worried.

"I'll fix that," he said after thinking it over a while. "In the past man has always been getting himself in trouble over the little things. Let's give him something big to work on. Let's give him a little, tiny bit of the Creation itself. Let's let him find the power that lies in the atom, and play with that for a while. It will be man's last chance. He'll either like it, or it will lick him."

The Once Over

Lines After Studying Fall Millinery

WHAT'S become of that old beaver
That my father used to wear?
It was tall and rather battered;
Of hard knocks it had its share;
Oh, for years it had been missing,
But it's back among us now,
And this season sees it perching
Over mom's and sister's brow.

II

Father wore it but to weddings
Or when greeting folks of fame;
It was not worn on the bias—
Comedy was not his aim.
But now mother has no scruples—
And her mirror seems to please,
As she puts it on her noodle
When her milliner decrees!

III

There's no polish now upon it
And the rim is out of place;
There's a wider one that mother
Has been told improves her face;
Now some funny dents adorn it
With queer trimmings, quite a lot,
But my mother and my sister
Think it makes 'em plenty hot.

IV

It's been stretched and made quite cockeyed
And some queer junk's been affixed,
But it's still my old man's beaver
Though its moods are badly mixed;
Mother wears it at such angles
As my dad would never dare—
(Unless coming from a banquet
With the vine leaves in his hair.)

V

Mom may cut it down, extend it,
Doll it up with things galore,
But she never can deceive me—
It's the plug hat father wore;
And this is my firm conclusion:
Though she wears it with aplomb,
It looked better on my old man
Than it ever looks on mom!

Door Bells

By Truman Twill

Take door bells, for example. They're another thing that can stand some uplifting.

We are more than halfway to a sensible conclusion, which is that no one should have the right to get us out of bath tubs, beds, attic basements and easy chairs just by ringing a bell.

What we need isn't a one-way alarm system but a two-way communication system. A lady in the bathtub doesn't care who happens to be at the door, friend or foe. A gentleman taking a nap likewise wants nothing but to finish his nap. Callers are a dime a dozen, but privacy is precious.

This door bell nonsense started in the castle and moat era when there was no nonsense about brush salesmen, needle peddlers, friendly children and good will dispensers dropping in at all hours.

The occasional customer who wanted to get inside in those days was expected to signify his desire by tugging at a bell provided for that purpose. Thereupon, the inmates took a gander and decided whether to let him have a bucket of hot lead on the spot, or whether to let the lug in for further examination.

He either got in or didn't, and even if he did he could expect to cool his heels while the fancy chainwork and metal bars were unbuttoned. These were kept in place to repel plug-uglies with bad habbits of bashing in heads and kidnaping proud beauties. All visitors were either good or bad; there were no casuals. Brush salesmen and poll takers were still in the woodwork.

Today, bell ringers are likely to be almost anybody, including befuddled characters looking for another address. The country is full of people with nothing better to do than ring door bells to see what happens.

What will happen to some of them in the better world of tomorrow is something to think about with satisfaction. Electronics will put every part of the house in vocal and visual contact with whatever stands at the door. "I am John Doe," the caller will announce. "I hate come to use up some of your time on a useless errand. Won't you please let me in?"

A lady in a bath tub or a gent in an easy chair will flip a convenient switch and John Doe will be sizzled with invisible rays. On the other hand, those who deserve admittance will be welcomed and invited to walk in and make themselves at home. There will be a lot less wear and tear on patience, feet and doors, because no time at all there will be a lot fewer men hanging around to bother us.

Dr. Johnson, a member of Ohio State university's faculty, listed these factors as favorable to avoiding such a boom:

(1) About one-half of today's farm purchases are for cash.

(2) The total farm mortgage debt has declined from $6,000,000,000 in 1941 to nearly $5,000,000,000.

(3) Institutional lenders have been holding farm mortgage loans to reasonable levels.

Dr. Johnson advised farmers to spend savings to improve buildings, purchase labor-saving equipment and generally improve their farms, and asked real estate dealers to analyze carefully each sale, outlining the farm's possibilities and earning power to prospective customers to permit more intelligent trading.

WHEAT EXPORTS HIT BY TRANSPORT LACK

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 12—With foreign needs increasing, exports of domestic wheat apparently are limited more by inadequate transportation facilities than by lack of supplies, Chicago Board of Trade brokers said Saturday.

The bureau of agricultural economics of the department of agriculture says the bulk of wheat available for export is in North America and tentatively estimates United States exports for the 1945-46 crop year at 325,000,000 bushels, it adds, however:

"The shortage of cars, delay in handling at ports, and delay in replacing lend-lease with financial and credit arrangements are at least temporarily holding down the movement. Unless conditions are improved the total exports may fall below 25,000,000 bushels."

The government recently called on the railroads to ship 27,000,000 bushels of wheat to upper lake ports by Dec. 5, deadline for steamer movements to Buffalo and Toledo. This was 7,000,000 bushels more than a recently revised request and more than twice the original fall estimate of 12,000,000 bushels.

To ease the grain belt boxcar shortage, the interstate commerce commission is surveying shippers and rail carriers in New England and westward to the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to determine to what extent they are failing to load and unload freight cars and return them to the west.

Jerome Kern, Leader in Music World for 30 Years, Is Dead

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Jerome Kern, 60, composer of "Ol' Man River," "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" and many other tunes sung by Americans for more than 30 years, died yesterday.

Dr. Harold T. Hyman, Kern's physician, said death was caused by cerebral thrombosis.

Kern had arrived in New York from the west coast three days before his collapse on Nov. 5 to supervise rehearsals of his revived "Show Boat."

At his bedside when he died were his wife and Eva, their daughter.

Kern, a native of the New York east side, began his musical career as a "song-plugger" at a department store musical counter. His first hit song was "They Didn't Believe Me" in 1914.

One of his most popular scores was "Show Boat," in which were such tunes as "Only Make Believe," "Can't Help Loving Dat Man of Mine," "Ol' Man River" and "Why Do I Love You?"

In recent years Kern spent considerable time in Hollywood. He also had engaged in the music publishing business.

He was born Jan. 27, 1885, and like many East Side youngsters of his generation grew up to be a leader in the theatrical field and one of the highest paid song writers in the world.

Among the Broadway shows for which he wrote the musical scores were "Very Warm for May," "The Cat and the Fiddle," "Sweet Adeline," "Roberta," "Sally," and "Shes a Good Fellow." In the latter show, in 1919, Fred and Adele Astaire danced their way to success.

His other songs included "Look for the Silver Lining," "The Night Was Made for Love," "I've Told Every Little Star," "Till the Clouds Roll By" and "Babes in the Woods."

Watch That Cough! It Blows at Over 245 Miles an Hour

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

CINCINNATI, Nov. 12—The human cough is a big wind that can attain super-hurricane velocity and exert a force which, if prolonged, is sufficient to crack one or more of the cougher's ribs, a Wisconsin doctor said today.

Dr. Andrew L. Banyai of Marquette University Medical school, declared in a report prepared for a meeting of the American College of Chest Physicians that coughs of such violence can be beneficial in that they sometimes clear the lung passages of congesting material, such as mucous.

But he said there are some conditions under which congesting substances cling tenaciously despite violent and exhaustive coughing. Unless relieved, the situation leads to prolonged, inefficient coughing. And Banyai declared such repeated explosive effort can result not only in the fracture of ribs but also in hemorrhage or collapse the lung.

Dr. Banyai said the velocity of air of the human cough as it leaves the throat has been measured at more than 245 miles an hour.

Long Illness Fatal to Crestline Man

Settlement Proposed in China Civil War

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, Nov. 12—Chinese Communists said today they and Chiang Kai-shek's Central government have agreed to allow the proposed political consultative council to settle "all outstanding issues" of China's undeclared civil war—and that the council will be called into session about Nov. 20.

The final issue of peace or all-out war, however, rests with the generalissimo, a Communist spokesman asserted, adding:

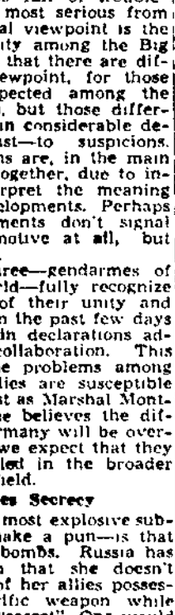
"If Chiang cancels his orders for 'bandit suppression' there can be peace."

A Communist spokesman said "serious fighting" is under way, and he asserted Chinese commando troops trained by the U. S. Office of Strategic Services were being employed against Communists.

Big Powers' Lack of Solidarity Is World's Big Ache

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

British Field Marshal Montgomery says Allied cooperation has fallen short of making the four-power government of Germany effective and that if there is failure in this program for control of the Reich—"one of the boldest experiments in this history of international cooperation"—then "the prospect of successful international cooperation between the great powers in a wider field will be much impaired."



D. Mackenzie

The famous soldier chose Armistice day for this statement, which he made at a press conference in Berlin. It was in effect—and perhaps by purpose—a powerful sermon on the true meaning of this day of memories and rededication. That meaning is "cooperation."

The world thought it had learned the lesson of international cooperation in the last war. But the smoke of gun-powder had scarcely disappeared before the second World war was on its way. Man learns slowly and by hard experience.

It's taking a lot to drive home the truth that the time when families or tribes or nations could isolate themselves is past, and that peace and security and progress are dependent on international collaboration. Indeed many countries are torn with internal conflict. Look at poor old China, for instance. And yesterday General de Gaulle appealed to his people to throw aside their "absurd quarrels" and unite in the interest of the country.

The Biggest Trouble

The world is full of trouble-spots, but the most serious from the international viewpoint is the lack of solidarity among the Big Three. It isn't that there are differences of viewpoint, for those are to be expected among the best of friends, but those differences are due in considerable degree to distrust—to suspicions. Those suspicions are, in the main and perhap altogether, due to inability to interpret the meaning of various developments. Perhaps those developments don't signal any ulterior motive at all, but they look bad.

The Big Three—gendarmes of the whole world—fully recognize the necessity of their unity and each has within the past few days said as much in declarations advocating collaboration. This means that the problems among these great allies are susceptible of solution. Just as Marshal Montgomery says he believes the difficulties in Germany will be overcome, so may we expect that they will be dispelled in the broader international field.

Dislikes Secrecy

Perhaps the most explosive subject—not to make a pun—is that of the atomic bombs. Russia has made it plain that she doesn't like the idea of her allies possessing this terrific weapon while she lacks the "secret". One would expect Russia to make concessions to the Anglo-American allies when she is satisfied about the bomb.

Thus the conferences on atomic energy in Washington the past week-end between President Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee of Britain and MacKenzie King of Canada are of incalculable importance. Report has it Mr. Attlee is urging that the atomic discoveries and like developments be shared with other nations, once safeguards have been established. That would be calculated to meet the Russian demand.

Bus Argument Over Smoking Proves Fatal

By The Associated Press

BARBERTON, O., Nov. 12—An Akron Transportation Co. bus driver today faces arraignment on a second degree manslaughter charge in connection with the death of a passenger following an argument over smoking on the bus, police reported today.

The passenger, Pierree J. Dufour, 55, died a few hours after he fell through the bus door at a stop and was run over by the right rear wheel, police said.

Officers quoted several passengers on the bus as saying Dufour grappled with the driver, Broda Cunningham, 42, of Akron while the bus was halted. Cunningham told them the bus brake was released in some manner as Dufour fell through the door, police reported.

A SCHOOL PROPOSAL

Editor of The Star: East is East. West is West. Shall the twain meet? The demonstration from the students from our high school and junior schools of Marion have proven without a doubt, that the twain has met.

What do I mean by that statement? Well, in the first place, let's start from the beginning. Our schools were overcrowded. Everybody knows that. Some civic-minded men and women in Marion proceeded to do something about it. A proposal was put before the voters of Marion and it seems that, because the proposed high school site was too far east that the school issues were voted down.

Did we, as parents, ever take stock of ourselves, and ask ourselves whether or not, at times, we are off the beam? Especially, around election time, we fret about some things that were brought up at the primary election, and some things that were not brought up, then, if some part of a major issue were not presented just right we say that everything is unfair and then we take an indifferent attitude and vote the whole issue down.

I'm guilty, and so are you. That is, most of us do not take time to reason these things out before the problems arise. We should weigh the facts—pro, and con, then express ourselves. Most of us sit back and let the other fellow do the planning then if we do not get our way about everything we get sore, and sour.

I have lived 37 years in the west side of Marion, and I like the west side. And if I didn't like the west side, then I would move to the east side. I think that the majority of the people on the east side of Marion think the same way about that particular section of the city. Now, it can be told. It's a proven fact that the people on the west side of Marion voted the schools down because the proposed location for a new high school was too far south and east for their children to go to school. Maybe that's true, I think it is. Also, I don't think we, from the west side would ask the boys and girls from Vernon Heights and around South Prospect street vicinity to come all the way across town to come out to Oakland Heights to school.

Here is my proposal. Add one grade to Edison High, and you will change it from a junior high school to a senior high school, and I might add, one of the best. This would, without a doubt, attract more boys and girls from the west side, and if my guess is right, in a few years we will need two high schools anyway.

Here is something to think about. The city of Lima, O., about 50 miles west of Marion has a population of about 50,000. They also have two high schools. Marion has a population at the present time of over 30,000 and if we get some new industries (through an expanded school program) then we will grow to around 50,000 in a very short time.

We can't stand still. We either go forward or else we go backward. We try to better conditions, in general, just as we more industries and people or we do not try to better conditions, in general thus discourage people from outside our city from coming in. What is the answer? Maybe you have the answer.

The students have expressed their opinion. Let's hear from you. Just a civic-minded citizen of Marion.

ROY C. BUCKINGHAM.

Four Hurt as Blast Hits Columbus Plant

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 12—Four persons were injured—two seriously—when an explosion wrecked the Associated Art Glass Studio today.

Injured seriously were co-owners Max Frank and Kyle Rader. Treated and released from a hospital were Joe Durr, co-owner, and Russell Johnson of Grove City.

Durr said the four had just arrived at the studio when there was a flash and the whole two story brick building came tumbling down. Frank was blown into the street by the blast and the others were dug out from the demolished building.

Cause of the explosion was not immediately determined. The company manufactures stained glass.

DIXIE KIEFER DIES AS PLANE CRASHES

By The Associated Press

BEACON, N. Y., Nov. 12—Commodore Dixie Kiefer, Pacific war hero who lived through ten major wounds in two world wars, was killed yesterday in the crash of a Navy plane on Mount Beacon, three miles northeast of here. The wreckage was found today.

Five other persons also died in the crash.

The First Naval district in Boston today confirmed that Kiefer was one of the victims. Earlier a municipal official had reported the commodore was among the dead.

The wrecked plane and the victims were found on the mountainside at 2:35 a. m. (EST) today, said the official, who declined to be quoted by name.

Commodore Kiefer was widely known as "captain Dixie" of the documentary film "Fighting Lady."

The plane, a twin-engined bomber, crashed at noon yesterday enroute from Caldwell, N. J., to Quonset Point, R. I.

The bodies burned badly and the plane's fuselage had been destroyed by a fire.

The municipal official said Commodore Kiefer was identified by items in his pocket. Another mark of identification, he said, was the cast on his arm, which he had worn since his arm was broken when Japanese suicide planes struck the aircraft carrier "Ticonderoga," during a naval battle off Formosa.

During that battle, Kiefer was struck by 65 pieces of shrapnel as he stood on the bridge of the ship.

Kiefer, a bachelor, called Kansas City, Mo., home. At death, he was commanding officer of the Naval Air station at Quonset, and had under his jurisdiction 29 naval air bases in New England.

He was executive officer of the carrier "Yorktown," when it was sunk in the Pacific.

SON OF MARIONITE KILLED IN ACTION

Mrs. Warren Wise Informed of Ensign Conaway's Death.

Formal notification of the death of Ensign Donald McGuire Conaway, U. S. Naval Reserve, reported missing in action a year ago, together with the Distinguished Flying Cross and citation in recognition of outstanding service, were received recently by his widow, Mrs. Ruth Carol Conaway of Toledo. Ensign Conaway, pilot of a torpedo bomber, was the son of Mrs. Warren J. Wise of 364 East Church street.

Word that the 23-year-old pilot was missing in action was received by Mrs. Conaway Nov. 5, last year. The message did not disclose the date on which he was missing nor the location of his ship.

The citation reads "For heroism and extraordinary achievement in aerial flight as pilot of a torpedo bomber in Torpedo Squadron Twenty, attached to the USS Enterprise operating against enemy Japanese forces on Kyushu and Formosa and on the Bonin, Palau and Philippine Groups from Oct. 10 to 18, 1944. Striking boldly at Japanese shipping ground installations and aircraft in these strategic, heavily fortified areas. Ensign Conaway flew deep into hostile territory as he carried out his assigned bombing missions with skill and determination. Participating in a powerful attack on enemy shipping in Manila Bay on Oct. 18, he plunged through a curtain of shattering anti-aircraft fire from both ship and shore batteries and, releasing his torpedoes with extreme accuracy, scored a direct hit on a large cargo ship which subsequently sank.

"By his superb airmanship, indomitable fighting spirit and cool courage under fire, Ensign Conaway contributed essentially to the extensive and costly damage inflicted upon the enemy in this theater of operations and his unwavering devotion to duty throughout was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service." The citation bore the signature of James Forrestal, secretary of the Navy.

Ensign Conaway took his civilian pilot's training at Toledo university in the summer of 1942 and in October of that year entered his pre-flight training at Iowa City. In December of that year he went to Glenview, Ill., for further training and in April of 1943 went to Corpus Christi, Tex., where on Aug. 4 he was graduated and received his wings. After receiving his commission he was stationed at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., until Oct. 15 when he went to San Diego, Calif., where he was based until leaving for the South Pacific combat area April 14, 1944.

Mrs. Conaway is in nurse's training at the Toledo state hospital and following later training at Columbus will be graduated in May of next year.

MEIER'S FINE WINES

As We Would Like To Be Served . . . .

There is only one fixed policy at the Hughes Funeral Home, and it guides the efforts of our entire staff on every funeral entrusted to us. That policy is to serve as we would like to be served.

Many things are covered by that policy. It is responsible for the homelike surroundings, air conditioning and the Everett organ in our Funeral Home. It assures that cost will meet your desires -and that every member of the staff will do all in their power to serve you.

If you prefer such treatment, it is something to remember the next time you require funeral service.

You may have read that telephones are again being manufactured for civilians. That is true. But unfortunately their production is still far below the nationwide demand. In addition, there is still a shortage of trained men to install telephones and also to install central office equipment necessary for service. If you are still on our waiting list, we hope you will understand the delay. We will try to make your wait as short as possible.
